WAR BULLETIN

LONDON, May 20 (AP) — The French radio in Algiers said tonight that Polish troops had captured Piedimonte, reported to be the northern anchor of the Hitler line in Italy. (A report from the Italian yesterday said the Poles were pushing patrols out in the area of Piedimonte, four miles west.)

Entire Nazi Line in Italy Near Collapse as Allied Troops Slug Way Past Crumbling Defenses

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, May 20 (AP) — American and French troops, smashing through the crumbling Hitler line, pounded the whole southern half of the German front back today in a wide swing toward a new wall anchored at Terracina — only 25 miles from allied might massed on the Anzio beachhead.

The Germans lost heavily in men, tanks, and guns as they were being forced back in disorder up to 15 miles to a new "switch line" from Pico to Terracina, headquarters declared.

The eighth army successfully assaulted the fortified line farther north and the French punched deeper into the mountains in the center.

The nazi "switch line" runs from Pico in the middle of the Italian front 21 miles southwest through a horseshoe-shaped mountain ridge to Terracina on the sea.

The lower half of the Hitler line originally had run through Pico to American-captured Pignata, nearly 20 miles east of Terracina. Visualizing on a clock what this swing means in territory—it is as though the long hand (pivoting at Pico) had moved from 6 (Formia) to 8 (Terracina).

Light Opposition

Associated Press Correspondent Jim Peter, travelling with the advancing fifth army along the east, reported from the front late tonight that the Americans had reached a point 35 miles from the Anzio beachhead "without meeting more than casual opposition."

If the point reached was along the coast it would mean that the Americans were within about 10 miles of Terracina, base of the new German line.

In nine days of this offensive intended to crush the German 10th army, 6,500 nazi prisoners have been taken, with more coming in, and the Germans have suffered considerable losses in dead, innumerable guns and tanks, and vast supplies.

Stiff Resistance

The enemy nevertheless resisted stubbornly, and the campaign remained a hard slugging match with the allies trying to throw in powerful new blows while the germans still are groggy. Formidable German defenses still guard the Liri valley and the mountains in the Cassino area, and a frontal dispatch from the eighth army cautioned that "apparently very costly fighting still is in prospect." Moreover, the advances have increased allied supply difficulties.

U.S. troops plunging through the coastal sector captured the Appian road junction of Itri, the seaport of Gaeta, on a short peninsula to the south, and drove seven miles from the latter town against fierce rear guard action.

Engineers are repairing Hitler line fortifications in the north, eighth army tanks and troops thrust through barbed wire entanglements to the fringes of Aquino in the Liri valley, and opened an attack on another stronghold, Pontecorvo.

Polish Troops Active

Still farther north, Polish forces fighting through high mountains around Monte Santa Croce, 2½ miles northwest of Cassino — monastery moved up into Piedimonte, just off Highway 6, the road to Rome, and stepped up other heights.

DEWEY CAPTURES OREGON'S VOTES

PORTLAND, May 20 (AP) — Late returns increased today the margin by which Gov. Thomas E. Dewey won control of Oregon's 15 Republican national convention delegate and Wayne L. Morse took the Republican U. S. senatorial nomination over Sen. Rufus C. Holman.

With 800 scattered rural precincts of 1828 unheard from, the presidential preference primary standings were:

Dewey 16,235; Lieut. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen 2,035; Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio 1,029; Wendell L. Willkie received 140 votes in 616 precincts although he had withdrawn; Morse, 43, former Oregon law school dean and war labor board member, led 66-year-old Senator Holman 47,152 to 39,981.

During the bitter campaign, Morse called Holman a "dangerous isolationist," while Holman claimed Morse was a "new deal carpet bagger" whom President Roosevelt persuaded to run to "purge" Holman.

To fill out the four-year unexpired term of the late Senator Charles L. McNary, Republicans nominated Senator Guy Cordon, now serving by appointment, and Democrat Willis Mahoney, unopposed.

President Roosevelt received Oregon's 14 Democratic national convention votes for president.

Wendell Firm to Face OPA Charge

BOISE, May 20 (AP)—The office of price administration brought suit in federal district court today against three Idahoans, charging violation of ceiling price regulations and asking permanent injunctions prohibiting infractions.

Named defendants were Jacob Epstein, Idaho Falls honey producer; Orville S. Cox, Shelley honey processor; and R. D. Bradshaw and son, Wendell, honey producers.

OPA charged that the Bradshaw firm between Aug. 13 and Sept. 1, 1943, bought bulk honey in violation of ceiling prices.

Epstein was charged with selling 40,020 pounds of bulk honey to Cox, and Cox was charged in a separate complaint with buying the honey at more than the legal price.

Ex-Communists to Back FR for 1944

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—The 25-year-old American Communist party dissolved today, giving way to a non-party association for political education which will support President Roosevelt for reelection.

A report drafted by the resolutions committee and later approved said "to guarantee victory in the 1944 elections it is necessary for all patriotic Americans . . . to insure the continuance of Roosevelt's leadership and to secure the election of a victory congress supporting the President."

Seven Get Tags For Jaywalking

For the first time in the history of Twin Falls, pedestrians yesterday were handed summons for crossing main thoroughfares in the middle of blocks and for risking necks by ignoring red traffic lights.

Although there has been an ordinance against jay-walking "on the books" since 1940, Saturday marks the first time it was enforced. City police had served warning earlier in the week.

Those paying fines of $1 each for the "privilege" of saving a few steps by jay-walking on downtown streets were Jane White, W. A. Boden, Raymond Jacquies and D. D. Kelley.

Three others, who received lectures from Municipal Judge J. O. Pumphrey, were J. E. Harmison, Frank Bailes and Dick Halpin.

War-Limited Five Man Staff Actually Improves 17 Parks

BY JEAN DINKELACKER

The manpower shortage, war-created, is being met admirably by S. Claud Stewart, city parks superintendent, and his limited staff of four assistants, who are not only maintaining the past high standard of the 17 parks of the city, but who are improving them extensively this season.

That count of 17 includes not only the city park, with its colorful landscaped rock garden, Drury park with its grass-carpeted "outdoor playroom", Shoshone falls park, with its inviting nooks for cook-outs and picnic parties, Harmon and Jaycee parks, with their varied facilities for juvenile and adult recreation . . . but the flower-bordered small triangular parks on Addison avenue and Blue Lakes boulevard, principally.

It also includes the 44-yet undeveloped four-acre park on the edge of South Park addition, which was purchased a year ago.

The park would have been needed this spring, in preparation for the tremendous playground program, but it is at present impossible to get the garden hose, sprinklers and other equipment necessary in pouring the lawns, Stewart said. If equipment can be obtained later, it is planned to seed the park in August or September.

"It would be foolish to waste grass seed now, when we cannot accurately care for it. The ground was plowed last fall, and it will be cultivated throughout the summer, to keep down the weeds," the park superintendent stated.

Stewart is entering his eighth year as superintendent of city parks—his most difficult year of all, from the standpoint of obtaining sufficient help to carry out the park program. But he isn't discouraged. All the men on his staff are good workers, he said.

At Shoshone falls park an interesting experiment underway. Under Stewart's supervision, more than 100 quaking aspen trees have been transplanted from the Minidoka national forest, being set out in groves at the park site in Snake river canyon.

CHURCHILL PLAN FOR PEACE NEAR

LONDON, May 20 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill may lay before commons next week his plans and hopes for world security and a policed peace, in a prelude to a liberation message which will be a psychological shaft aimed particularly at the enemy in occupied countries.

And—long hard years after the day of his "blood, sweat and tears" cry of defiance—Britain's prime minister is expected to repeat in effect those fateful words, this time not to temper British hearts for the uphill struggle, but to remind the continent that a high price still must be paid for victory.

It is likely, too, that he will weave into the foreign policy address an expression of the empire's structure newly strengthened by the conference of its prime ministers, and review the economic warfare accomplishments in cutting down all the needs had been receiving from neutrals.

This statement, opening a foreign policy debate, will be offered as an answer to criticism from some quarters—similar to that frequently directed at the state department in Washington—that the British lack of a long-range pattern for dealing with other nations.

The task apparently leaves him a choice of describing formulae or of defending the lack of an announced program by discussing difficulties of operating under any fixed pattern during wartime.

Current in diplomatic quarters, however, was pin-pointed upon the possibility that Churchill will chart the course of political and economic collaboration after victory, and give a hint of terms for Germany upon which the European advisory commission has been working.

FLASHES of LIFE

By Associated Press

ANNIVERSARY

CHICAGO, May 20—First, Lieut. Joseph A. Solan timed his furlough to arrive home in time to observe his first wedding anniversary.

Solan, a bombardier on a Flying Fortress, met overseas soon after his marriage on May 19, 1943, and in less than a year he has bombed 52 targets in Europe. He came back with the distinguished flying cross, the air medal and two silver clusters and a recommendation for the purple heart.

"It's wonderful to be home again," Solan said, "but I'm going back."

GARDENER

CHICAGO, May 20—Park district policemen theorized that an enthusiastic gardener had solved the problem of a scarcity of garden tools the city's expense.

Missing from a tool shed in Washington park were the following: One leaf sweeper, one rake, one spade, one wheelbarrow, one roller and a lawn mower.

SUSPICION

LOS ANGELES, May 20—A pedestrian yelled "Yippe-ee-e" and tossed a handful of dollar bills in the air, then repeated the operation twice while onlookers scrambled for the greenbacks.

At police headquarters, where the man was questioned, he had only a few dollars left of his $100.

He was booked on suspicion of drunkenness.

To Support FRD

NEW YORK, May 20 (UP)—Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party, announced today that the party would support President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Tension in Red Capital Mounts

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—The long eastern front was reported quiet through another day today as increasing signs came from Moscow of mounting tension in the Soviet capital over the prospects of opening a western land front against the Germans.

Tension matching that in Britain was evident in Moscow dispatches which emphasized that the red army was eager for new offensives of its own which would be coordinated with blows from the west which the Russians hope will defeat the Germans before the end of the year.

The Soviet command announced again in its communique tonight there were no essential changes on any front during the day. The German command reported only local fighting on the lower Dnestr, in the Carpathian foothills and southeast of Vitebsk to the north.

Two Ranking Jap Admirals Killed

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP) — The deaths of Japanese Rear Admirals Torajiro Sato, "the pride of the submarine units," and Tomejiro Tamagi were disclosed today by Japan's Domei news agency broadcasting a list of 84 naval officers who were killed in action between August, 1940, and December, 1943.

The broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission, said Sato and Tamagi would receive posthumous awards for distinguished service. When or how their deaths occurred were not disclosed.

SIMPLIFIED TAX BILL OKAYED BY VOTE IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP) — A "painless extraction" tax bill, designed to excuse some 30,000,000 of the nation's 50,000,000 taxpayers from having to fill out any more federal income tax returns, passed the senate today by voice vote.

The measure, which obligates the collector of internal revenue to do most taxpayers' arithmetic, was sent back to the house for concurrence in minor technical changes.

Changes Program

It reshuffles the entire income tax structure, scraps the two-year-old victory tax and set new normal and surtax rates and exemptions while holding the total individual income burden only $50,000,000 smaller than the present $17,000,000,000 level.

The senate approved the bill immediately after Senator Langer, R., N. D., yielded the floor following three hours and 20 minutes speech-making yesterday and another hour at today's session. Langer had refused to permit action yesterday on the ground that the simplification bill was filled with perplexities he needed time to study.

Abandoned Plans

Senator McCarran, D. Nev., abandoned plans to amend the bill to cut the carabet tax from 30 to 10 per cent after he said he was assured by finance committee Chairman

RATE FOR BEET THINNING UPPED

A victory for Mexican nationals objecting to rates paid for beet thinning was registered at a meeting in the Jerome county courthouse Friday night when farm labor sponsoring committees of six counties voted to raise the rate from $8.50 to $11 an acre.

Carl Leonard, Filer, chairman of the Twin Falls committee, said the action was taken after all committeemen had decided that the price of $8.50 an acre was not in line with the 60 cents an hour paid the Mexican workers for almost every other type of farm work.

The meeting was an emergency session called after a considerable number of Mexicans had refused to work Friday at Filer, Gooding and Wendell. The meeting was attended by their representatives at the Jerome meeting, wanted 60 cents an hour for beet thinning.

The committees held to the line that beet thinning in this locality had always been on a piecework basis, and that it should stay that way, but that the price should be boosted to $11 an acre, so as to approximate the 60-cents-an-hour rate.

The $11 rate for thinning all beets ignores the difference between scattered and solid stands, Leonard said this was done because fields planted to the latter are extremely rare in this area.

Glen Ewing, acreage chairman of the Jerome county farm labor sponsoring committee, presided at the meeting, which was attended by committeemen of Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding, Minidoka, Cassia and Twin Falls counties.

Approximately 50 committee representatives and 10 persons representing the Mexicans attended the meeting.

6,000 Planes Hurled Against Nazi Europe

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, May 20 (AP) — In the greatest mass air attack of the war the allies hurled 6,000 British-based planes at Hitler's west wall defenses today and blasted a 150-mile strip from Brittany to Belgium with a total of at least 8,000 tons of explosives.

Sixteen rail junctions, eight airfields and numerous other installations which Hitler hoped to use in combatting the western invasion were pounded in the gigantic onslaught which began soon after midnight and extended twice around the clock into darkness tonight.

Every type of plane based in Britain was thrown into the unprecedented bombardment, with the allied expeditionary air force—which will move into the continent in support of the invasion landings —flying more than 4,000 sorties.

Yanks Set Pace

An American armada of nearly 1,250 heavy bombers and fighters set the pace for the daylight raid with attacks in three airfields and one rail center after the RAF had started the day's reds with attacks on four important French rail centers.

The Americans sent out nearly 1,000 fighters to cover the approximately 250 heavy bombers, but only a few German planes were sighted by the fighters and none at all by the bombers. Two bombers and five fighters were lost and two German planes were destroyed.

Today's attacks brought to exactly 200 the number of raids made on rail centers in Germany and occupied countries by allied day and night bombers since they opened the campaign March 2 to wreck as many as possible before the invasion starts from the west.

Gas Gone, Plane Lands on Ranch

Two fliers of the army air corps escaped serious injury yesterday when the plane they were flying from an army base in Arizona to Ogden was forced down five miles west of Glover church because of lack of fuel.

The plane, a two-seater training ship, was brought down without mishap on property known as "the old E. H. Johnson place."

The terrain, described by the pilot lieutenant as "not exactly the place to bring down a plane that 'lands' at 90 miles an hour," is grass covered and rolling.

With the exception of minor scratches on the plane's landing gear, there was no property damage.

Fuel will be taken to the plane today from the army airbase at Mountain Home.

LABOR TROUBLES SLOWLY SUBSIDE

By Associated Press

The picture on the nation's labor front brightened considerably yesterday as hundreds of workers obeying war labor board directives, returned to their jobs. Although there were an estimated 25,850 employes still on the work as the result of labor troubles, settlement of some disputes was reported imminent.

A new work stoppage occurred yesterday at the John Deere Harvester plant at East Moline, Ill., when 1,000 employes failed to show up for work. Union officials said the dispute involved vacation pay. The president of the United Auto Workers (CIO) local said an order had been issued for the men to go back to work.

In Detroit officials of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), local representing approximately 10,000 idle Chrysler workers, who walked out last Tuesday over a dispute over delivery of soft drinks to the company's Highland Park plant, were scheduled to meet today with the management to discuss the dispute.

Settlement of the Chrysler labor controversy would bring to a virtual end recent unauthorized walkouts in Michigan war industries. However, at the Buick aluminum foundry in Flint, 1,600 were out; 1,300 remained away from their jobs at the Chevrolet transmission plant in Saginaw and 600 were out at a Muskegon foundry.

At Norristown, Penn., 56 striking bus drivers voted unanimously yesterday to continue a two-day-old walkout, disregarding pleas from their union leaders and the war labor board. Meanwhile, 25,000 war workers who depend on the Schuylkill Valley lines for transportation, walked or hitch-hiked to their jobs.

At Hazleton, Penn., 1,500 striking employes of the Duplan corp., voted yesterday to resume work tomorrow pending settlement of a wage and vacation dispute through the war labor board.

BURGLAR SENTENCED

BOISE, May 20 (AP)—Louis Garcia, 26, who pleaded guilty to a charge of burglarizing a home in Glenns Ferry, was sentenced yesterday to serve from one to 14 years in the state penitentiary by District Judge Charles F. Koelsch.

Hanging From Bomber by One Hand, Ex-Hailey Boy Didn't Drop His Axe

HAILEY, May 20—Known to his friends along the Wood river as "Red," Lieut. Edward M. Gibbens, who narrowly escaped plunging to his death while attempting to save his fellow crewmen when the bomber in which he was flying was forced to bail out, but that the price should be boosted to $11 an acre, so as to approximate the 60-cents-an-hour rate.

LIEUT. EDWARD M. GIBBENS (Staff engraving)

its crew, lived at the home of Mrs. Lena Harris here for three years after graduating from Hailey high school in 1935.

An Associated Press story Thursday stated that Lieutenant Gibbens, a bombardier, had volunteered to jettison the bombs from the crippled plane over the English Channel to avoid endangering lives when the plane made a crash landing.

Using a crash axe, he released the first bomb, which opened the bomb bay doors. In the 100-mile-an-hour gale Gibbens hacked the remaining bombs free one by one. Suddenly he slipped from the oily catwalk and plunged toward the open bomb bay. Still holding the axe, he managed to grab the beam back with one hand. When his companions came rushing to his aid, he had already dragged himself back to safety. His only comment to the startled crew was:

"I didn't lose the axe."

Lieutenant "Red" Gibbens came here in 1934 from Rupert where he lived at the home of Mrs. Ida Gibson most of his previous life. He left Hailey about six years ago, and resided in Mountain Home before entering service a year ago. He is receiving his wings at the Big Springs, Tex., army airbase, he was sent overseas last April.

Nazi Rebuilding Of Ruins Okayed

DENVER, May 20 (AP)—German workers should be required to help rebuild the devastated countries of Europe after the war, 51 per cent of 2,536 persons interviewed by the national opinion research center believe.

Forty-one per cent of those asked their opinions on the question replied "no." Eight per cent were undecided.

Individual replies ranged from expressions that such forced labor would constitute slavery and that it would be just punishment. Others specified that German labor could rebuild Russia and Poland at least.

JAP WAKDE BASE COMPLETELY IN CONTROL OF U.S.

By Associated Press

American soldiers, killing 24 Japanese for every doughboy lost, have wiped out enemy resistance on Wakde island in the southwest Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today (Sunday).

Only a small number of Japanese were taken prisoner. Five hundred and fifty were killed on Wakde island and the nearby shores of northwestern—New Guinea, MacArthur listed American losses for the entire operation at only 16 killed, 83 wounded and two missing.

Control Complete

Complete control over Wakde, 1,000 miles from MacArthur's goal on the Philippines, was established Friday afternoon. But enemy artillery fire held up the advance on the west.

In other actions reported yesterday and today allied war planes striking at the northern and southern ligs of Japan's defense destroyed 21 enemy aircraft and sank or damaged 18 ships.

Boston attack planes sank three nipponese freighters off Manokwari, near the western tip of New Guinea, and one of the greatest Japanese bases in the Dutch East Indies.

Ships Wrecked

Aleutian based army and navy bombers wrecked two nipponese vessels as they struck for the seventh time this month at Paramushiro naval base on the northern road to Tokyo.

Five thousand miles to the south 10 other surface craft were hit squarely and 21 Japanese planes wiped out by Wednesday 100 carrier-borne planes making the heavier, attack of the campaign against Dutch naval base on Java.

American, British, Australian, Dutch and French airmen participated in the attack, the first unified action of the allied southwest Asia, southwest Pacific and central Pacific commands from their repair and oil facilities were left in flames.

JAPS FORCED TO FLEE MYITKYINA

SOUTHEAST ASIA HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, Ceylon, May 20 (AP)—The allied command announced officially today that the Japanese garrison of Myitkyina, in the north Burma stronghold of Myitkyina and that Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's infantry, backed by a continuous influx of air-borne reinforcements, had swept across the Irrawaddy river four miles south of the city.

Chinese and American forces closed in steadily from three sides, one column from Charpate, four miles to the north and another from the right bank of the Irrawaddy and seizing the island village of Zigyun where the stream bends sharply to the west, and still another driving down the Mogaung valley against trapped remnants of the Warong garrison.

CHINESE GAINING

CHUNGKING, May 20 (AP) — Chinese troops claimed a firmer hold on their re-won section of the Yunnan-Burma railway today, capturing the rail city of Kiokian, 110 miles south of Chenghsien, the high command announced. In the north, Chinese troops reported the isolated defenders of Loyang were doomed to massacre if they failed to surrender immediately.

Kiokian, 43 miles north of the Japanese southern Honan base of Sinyang, was taken early in the day after the Chinese cut enemy communications between the city and Mingkiang, 32 miles to the south, a communique said.

The Chinese previously had reported cutting the Japanese hold on the railway at Suiping, 23 miles south of Kiokian, and to have encircled the enemy at Chumatien, 12 miles south of Suiping.

First Invasion Orders Sent to Patriot Forces

LONDON, May 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's supreme invasion headquarters broadcast its first direct orders to Europe's underground today, telling that huge and growing army of patriots to stand careful and minute note of the Germans' every move to aid the coming assault.

"In due course," the broadcast declared, "you will receive advice and instructions from the supreme command (Eisenhower himself), who "counts upon you as part of his force now being marshalled to intensify the defeat on the Germans and bring about the final liberation of your countries."

Regular Broadcasts

The first message to the "V" army, implying that regular broadcasts would be made, said the next one would be on May 31.

The headquarters spokesman called on the underground to note the strength and movements of German troops, tanks, and guns, to spot location of supply dumps, and urged the patriot army to be "disciplined and vigilant," to "hide all your actions until the word is given."

Meanwhile the allied air offensive against strategic rail centers and, by German account at least—swift sweeps of the channel waters by enemy and allied ships were filling out the pattern which Berlin says will precede "D" day.

Warned of Gas

Urging everyone to care for his gas mask, Field Marshal Lord Birdwood, "father" of the British army, warned that "although Hitler has promised that he will not use gas, he may at the last moment like a fiend and beaten dog release gas not only on troops, but on the country as well."

The Germans tried once again last night to feel out the channel darkness, but even their own account of widespread E-boat operations left it evident that the British naval forces are not content with screening their own coast and are carrying their operations almost to German-guarded beaches.

More Time Given For Asking Sugar

BOISE, May 20 (AP)—District Director C. A. Anderson of the office of price administration today extended the period for applying for a special allotment of 10 pounds of canning sugar to August 31, last set the date for starting the second allotment period at June 16 instead of Aug. 7.

Anderson said the continuous period for making application for a total of 30 pounds of canning sugar per person was extended because application forms have been delayed in transit and have not been available at many places. The price and rationing boards, he said, stamp ... not sugar stamps ... should accompany the applications.

stallations which the nazis are using to prepare for meeting allied forces when they sweep onto the continent from the west.

1. Fortresses attacked air fields at Orly and Villa Coublay near Paris and Liberators smashed at aircraft repair facilities at Champagne airdrome and Reims rail targets, dropping 750 tons of bombs on all targets.

U. S. strategic air force headquarters said all the bombing was done with good visibility and with satisfactory results.

2. American Marauders and Havocs and RAF Bostons and Mitchells of the allied European air force, with Thunderbolt and Spitfire escort, slammed into multi-colored objectives in France, with a total of probably 800 tons of bombs.

3. Thunderbolt fighter-bombers of the ninth U. S. army air force attacked unidentified targets in northern France under escort of other Thunderbolts.

4. Before daylight about 750 RAF bombers dumped some 3,360 tons of explosives on rail centers at Boulogne on the French channel coast, at Tours, 145 miles southwest of Paris; Le Mans, 110 miles southwest of Paris, and Saintes, 75 miles southwest of the former French capital.

Other British bombers hit French coastal objectives and laid mines in enemy waters, while Mosquitos attacked Cologne. The night's loss was seven planes.

Allies Rip Holes In Nazi Defenses

Correspondent Lynn H. Heinzerling with the eighth army in the Liri valley said the Germans had abandoned some equipment in falling back in this sector, but declared the nazis had a line of strong positions barring the broad valley and highway, guarded especially by towering, mile-high Mt. Cairo. Here the Germans dug in, placed anti-tank ditches, and strung barbed wire "about 10,000 yards across the entire valley" sometimes to a depth of 20 feet.

Allied headquarters disclosed the Germans, apparently to save their leader's prestige, had changed the name of the Hitler line to Dora line. Some new defense wall farther north may be given Hitler's name, an allied officer said, and "it can obviously be used again after Rome until the Hitler line coincides with Unter den Linden," Berlin's historic thoroughfare.

Simplified Tax Bill Is Okayed

George, D., Ga., that the amendment would be accepted to a pending bill raising the national debt limit from $210,000,000,000 to $240,000,000,000.

The simplification changes completely the withholding levy against wages and salaries—effective next January—so that currently the full tax liability of persons earning up to $5,000—thus making the withholding levy the actual tax for some 30,000,000 persons and removing the need for their computing formal returns.

Simpler Form

Of the 20,000,000 who still would be required to file returns, 10,000,000 —those earning less than $5,000 but with income other than salary and wages) could use a simple table showing their entire tax. The remaining 10,000,000, with incomes over $5,000, would fill out more detailed returns, which still would be simpler than the present long form.

Until next January 1 there would be no change in the amounts held out of pay envelopes and salary checks.

The bill changes personal exemptions from the present schedule of $1,200 for a couple plus $350 per dependent to a flat exemption of $500 a person, and allows a flat 10 per cent discount in lieu of present deductions for contributions to religious, educational and charitable institutions, for other taxes and interest paid.

REFUGEES POUR INTO U. S. LINES

FORMIA, Italy, May 20 (U.P.) — Hundreds of Italian civilians—some sobbing, all hungry and dusty—came down from the hills around Formia today, making a total of more than 6,000 refugees who have poured into the American sector alone since the start of the present offensive.

Americans under the direction of Maj. E. T. Walker, Collingswood, N. J., handed out captured German rations to the men, women, and children as they crowded around a big gunny sack full of dry biscuits.

Women carried bundles on their heads, over hair turned white with the flour-like dust swirling up from the wheels of hundreds of vehicles.

One woman had a bullet in her arm and sobbed quietly as a group of refugees was herded into a stone enclosure.

Another woman sat in a tired, smelly crowd, nursing a child.

A six-year-old boy, unmindful of the turmoil, sat alone, blowing down the spout of a teapot, and lifting the lid to get different tones.

An occasional blast from an American gun brought a stop to the chatter and sent a ripple of uneasiness over the refugees.

A few of the refugees were able to take along goods when they fled the town and one person had a mule. They told how the Germans, subsisting on the country, slaughtered Italian livestock and took civilians' clothes, especially shoes.

More than half the refugees had goat skins wrapped around their feet. Others had no shoes at all.

There were many children and tired old men and women, but few persons of factory-worker age. And out of 150 refugees in two groups I saw only one girl of an age which might appeal to men in nazi rest camps.

Pipe Dream of Denmark

There comes a time every now and then in the life of Louis Larson, Wendell, when he wants to forget the chores on his Idaho ranch and muse about the good old days in Denmark. That's when he fills the bowl of his 200-year-old pipe, calls his dog, Tippy, to his side and sits puffing away in the sun. (Photo by Joe Donahue—staff engraving)

Northsider Has 200-Year-Old Pipe Brought From Denmark

WENDELL, May 20 — There are times when a pipe's a man's best friend, admits Louis Larson, and he has a special pipe for just such occasions. It's an ancient Danish pipe.

Larson has been spotted, sitting on the ground in the farm lot at his Wendell ranch, his back against a farm wagon wheel for support, puffing away in leisurely fashion, the picture of abstract contentment.

"A little large for convenience, perhaps, but look at that bowl. It's two ounces, and it'll hold a full tobacco tin," Larson said, as he lifted the pipe from his lips and held it up for inspection.

The pipe, 18½ inches long, is made mainly of cow horn, with a metal tube of horsehide extending to the cowhorn mouthpiece.

The China bowl is decorated with a scene, "The Lovers," in flamboyant colors.

It has been handed down in his family for more than 200 years. He acquired it as a 16-year-old, when he was living in Denmark.

Although he smokes a conventional pipe most of the time, occasionally he brings out the veteran for a good smoke, and a "flash back" in memory to the lighter moments of his boyhood days in Europe.

Larson came to this country in 1883 from Denmark, and lived in Ogden the first five years. Later he farmed in this state, near Grace, for 32 years, and came to Wendell 16 years ago.

"I smoke good tobacco from Kentucky. Costs $1 a pound," Larson volunteered.

The oinking of the pigs and the clucking of the hens was drowned out by the sharp staccato barking of three undersized Spitz dogs seeking to prevent a visitor from entering the driveway at the Larson home.

Larson once more took his great-great-grandfather's pipe from his mouth, lifted his voice to say reassuringly to the caller, "Tippy won't bite—much," and then called off the dogs, a trifle sharply.

CASTLEFORD, May 20—Women of the Castleford community, who have been holding Red Cross meetings for the past year, under the supervision of Mrs. Martin Miller and Mrs. Charles Shorthouse, have finished 52,168 dressings.

There is a total of 432 workers who, during this time have put in 4,528 hours doing Red Cross work. This makes an average of 36 workers each month, with each worker donating ten and one-half hours of her time each month.

At the beginning of their Red Cross meetings, they met only one day each week, but since that time the women have changed their schedule to wto meetings each week.

Ferry Red Cross Workers Needed

GLENNS FERRY, May 20—Mrs. H. N. Sims and Mrs. George Noyes, supervising the work in the surgical dressings room here, urge that local women increase their help with the dressings. The local quota has been greatly increased, and need for workers is crucial.

WALLACE LEAVES FOR CHINA VISIT

WASHINGTON, May 20 (U.P.) — Vice-President Henry A. Wallace left today to visit China and Siberia as a "messenger" for President Roosevelt.

The departure was announced in statements from the White House and Wallace's office. The White House said Wallace will report back to Mr. Roosevelt about the middle of July.

Wallace said the object of the trip was "to let our Asiatic friends know the spirit of the American people and the beliefs and hopes of their commander-in-chief."

Wallace's statement was the first official acknowledgment that he expects to visit Siberia as well as Chungking, the seat of the Chinese government.

"It is with great anticipation that I approach the Siberia experience," Wallace said, explaining that he would visit several Siberian cities. He made no reference to any plans to see Soviet Premier Josef Stalin.

Although Wallace did not say so, it was expected he would confer with Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

"The great Chinese leader Chiang Kai-shek has heard from the President directly," he said. "My visit is merely one of emphasis so that the hundreds of millions of Chinese peole may know that the American will to aid China is permanent and continuous until victory is achieved."

President Roosevelt announced that he had asked the vice-president "to serve as a messenger for me in China," and added that Wallace "is unusually well fitted to bring both to me and to the people of the United States a most valuable first hand report."

Wallace said that "upon my return I hope to contribute something to American understanding of today's Asia as well as detailed information for the President."

WHEN OUR FIGHTERS COME HOME

Many of us are old enough to recall what happened to thousands of returning veterans from the first world war. In many instances, those physically able to work could not find jobs. The spirit of wartime patriotism soon ebbed to the point that these fighting men were shown far too little consideration. In a good many cases, disabled veterans found themselves virtually helpless because of all the red tape involved in getting into veterans' hospitals. The rehabilitation program fell far short of fulfilling its purpose.

Bearing all that in mind, the people of Magic Valley and every other community in the United States, should rally to the support of a proposal that is being advanced by the American Legion for the benefit of all the men and women who will return from the present world war.

The Legion has asked congress for a legislative bill of rights for the men and women who are fighting this war. It's an omnibus measure embracing the principal provisions of government care and aid, unified and simple. In returning 11,000,000 members of the armed forces back into civilian life when their war services are terminated.

Although the war is a long ways from won and most of these men and women are still in uniform, 30,000 already are being discharged every month, many of them disabled on the fields of battle. This is a relatively small but grim reminder of what will come when the day arrives for the big demobilization. The numbers, by comparison, will make the return of veterans from the first world war seem almost insignificant. It will be a tremendous job and a tremendous responsibility.

They will be changed men and changed women," says Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion. "They will be veterans of the world's most terrible conflict. No one can be processed through such a cauldron of hellfire and emerge unmarked . . . They will have suffered wounds, every last one of them, either in body, or mind, or economic well being. Our plans for their homecoming must be inspired by our affection, reflect our gratitude, and evidence our organized thought for their welfare."

One of the chief provisions of the omnibus bill is to consolidate virtually all federal aid and services for the returning veterans within the U. S. Veterans administration, simplifying procedure and eliminating red tape as far as possible, and giving both the veterans and the taxpayers a square deal.

"At present," National Commander Atherton points out, "we have about a dozen government agencies scrambling for the honor of posing as guardians of certain veterans' interests, with the result that responsibility is divided, confusion exists, services overlap, costs pyramid, and the veteran all too frequently is left holding the bag as far as prompt and adequate treatment is concerned."

During recent years we have had many demonstrations of the confusion that results from our present set-up of federal bureaucracy. Surely, when it comes to the point of caring for the thousands who will have been disabled in this war, that great responsibility should not be entrusted to bureaucrats working at cross-purposes.

The Legion's omnibus bill, known as H. R. 3917 and H. R. 3921 in the lower house and as S. 1617 in the senate, provides the means of avoiding any such catastrophe.

If enacted into law, it will insure that absorption of the soldiers and sailors back into civilian life will be accomplished speedily, efficiently, with understanding and without hardships.

That's the least we can do for these returning men and women. We owe it to them to support this legislation in their behalf.

MORE PUBLICITY FOR IDAHO

Idaho, in recent years, has been particularly fortunate in the amount of nation-wide publicity received. Nearly every issue of the leading sportsmen's magazines carries some story about Idaho—its fishing, hunting and various "paradises," such as the Middle Fork country.

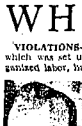

Now, Idaho is again in the limelight, this time with a story in the June issue of the National Geographic magazine, written by Sen. D. Worth Clark of Idaho, a member of the National Geographic society's Salmon river expedition in 1935.

The article, "Idaho Made the Desert Bloom," covers the state generally, but places special emphasis on Magic Valley, with exceptional color photographs portraying things of particular interest.

Senator Clark has done a good job, not only in writing the article, but in bringing nation-wide attention to Idaho once more with invaluable publicity that money could not buy.

It's also a break for the senator that the National Geographic happened to run the article in its present issue, coming as it does right before the primary election in Idaho.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Ray Tucker

VIOLATIONS—The national labor relations board, which was set up as a sort of supreme court for organized labor, has been bombarded by every working-man's group except the Murray-Hillman CIO. The two latter men are responsible for its creation — AFL President William Green and John L. Lewis—now charge that it is playing personal and partisan politics.

Here is only a partial list of its alleged violations of the Wagner act. It is supposed to administer fairly for all claimants, and its rulings are to be precedents which it established in earlier contests.

In the Montgomery Ward case it permitted an employer to force the calling of an election to undermine the bargaining unit, although such action is in clear violation of the statute. In doing so, it favored the CIO because of its anti-Lewis policies. A rival organization would emerge victorious in the balloting.

The federal agency scrapped its own regulations in several other important respects. It ordered balloting despite previous findings, and to vote employes laid during a labor dispute and until after all bona fide cases considered by the board had ended. Last, whereas precedent required at least a week, it has been cut to two days, making the ballot impossible for workers scattered over seven days' notice in advance of the nose counting.

Reasons for breaking both the law and its own regulations are obvious to Green-Lewis critics. The Sewell Avery election had become a hot political potato, and the administration handed it to settle the issue before the board's wavering.

The strike of these top sergeants of industry developed so suddenly and violently that the public was not aware of the bitter background. Trouble has been simmering for years, but it was the administration's enmity toward the United Mine Workers president, Mr. Lewis, which brought about the present climax.

In the first case involving the right of supervisors to organize—the Murray Auto Body company—the NLRB held that the Wagner act entitled them to this privilege. It reached the same decision when coal miners advanced a similar contention in the captive collieries trial, which affected Mr. Lewis' key men in the bituminous industry.

CONFLICTING—So, in the Maryland dry dock dispute, the NLRB-ers tried to square themselves. Reversing previous rulings, they held that foremen did not constitute proper units for collective bargaining.

In other words, the boss men could not form or join a union. That dictum, naturally, occasioned protests and strikes among foremen everywhere.

In the latest instances involving this question, the board handed down a decision which has no meaning whatsoever. It points toward labor chaos and anarchy at a time when peak production is needed by the army and navy.

It said that foremen should not organize for the purpose of collective bargaining, but that they could not be disciplined or discharged if they signed up with a union.

As a result of this series of conflicting decisions neither the employers nor their shop representatives know where they stand in their relations to each other or to the government.

CLASHES—The NLRB's nine-year record explains why many labor leaders believe that they have lost rather than gained ground by the seemingly bourgeois violent policies of the present regime. They begin to suspect that they have been used for partisan purposes.

The board as first organized ruled almost invariably in favor of Mr. Lewis, who then headed the CIO and was engaged in frequent jurisdictional disputes with the AFL. Time and again, the president has besieged congress to revise the basic law to prevent favoritism to his rival.

When the President and the United Mine Workers' chieftain came to political blows, the agency's membership was changed. It grew more conservative, and sided with the AFL-ers. But after Mr. Lewis withdrew from the CIO, and Hillman took charge, the turn of Sidney Hillman had control of that movement, the NLRB sought to build up the leftist group. Oddly enough, as the FBI tried to nail down Nazi spies and pro-Japanese businessmen after Pearl Harbor, the board added quite more heed to employers' complaints and contentions.

The personnel was again modified. Harry A. Millis, an acknowledged expert in industrial relations, was retained as chairman. But he has become a minority vote as a result of the resignations of partisan figures are Gerard D. Reilly, former solicitor of the labor department and a pal of Lee Pressman. The latter was an original labor relations counsel for the congress of Industrial Organizations. Pressman is the left-wing brain behind a valuable servant to the nation with his committee. Texans are not only conversant with his distinguished service, but they recall that he is a former Texan who left for home ties.

Hillman's CIO committee has raised large sums of money to oppose members of congress—both Republican and Democratic—who have refused to be stooges for the new deal. Attorney General Biddle has decreed that this political committee is proceeding within the law, although there are many restrictions which would bind labor's own organizations if they were equally engaging actively in politics or making political contributions.

The elections this year are of tremendous importance, and the destiny of this republic may be vitally affected by the results. Therefore, it behooves all Americans to take a personal interest in the issues which will be involved. There is a possibility that the vote being cast, and consequently the disinterestedness of any group, such as farmers, might profoundly affect the outcome. Many people are now concentrating on many fronts throughout the world, those remaining at home should discharge their duties as citizens fully cognizant of the importance of the right of franchise. —Burley Bulletin.

THE ISSUE

"There are two groups in congress—one which tolerates bureaucracy in government and one which insists that this shall be a government of law and not of men. That is the line upon which most of this controversial legislation is divided. It is a struggle which will determine whether the representatives of the people in congress shall make the law under which we all must live, or whether in the future we shall live under directives and proclamations and orders made by the executive agencies. And I believe when it is settled that government by law will prevail over government by men."—Jamie W. Mott, U. S. representative, Oregon.

The Watch on the Rhine

"WASHINGTON CALLING" BY MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—While at the moment the Montgomery Ward case is temporarily off the front pages, it does not mean by a long way that the last has been heard of it. Aside from later battles almost certain to be fought in this private war, two committees of congress are now looking into the matter.

Marquis Childs

That serves to point up one of the major congressional weaknesses of recent times. Two committees, mind you, one for the house and one for the senate.

To be sure the senate committee, of which Senator McCarran is chairman, covers all executive orders, but the bullseye for publicity will be the Montgomery Ward case. The special house committee, of which Representative Ramspeck of Georgia is chairman, will concentrate on Ward's with public hearings at which the principals will testify.

Time after time duplicating committees have competed in the headlines. The other day Representative Cochran of Missouri, who has an ingrown government know-how on anybody on capitol hill, got up on the matter, in the executive departments, put parallel lists in the record showing the double handling of money and man hours coming out of this duplication.

A house committee and a senate committee are investigating small business. Both the senate and the house have investigating committees that smack of the Dies tribunal. Duplicating committees have made junkets to air bases, navy yards and munitions factories. They waste not only their own time but the time of those who must furnish facts and answer questions.

Repeatedly it have seen high ranking officials of the army, navy, maritime commission and other war agencies before a senate committee one day and a house committee the next day going over the same subject," Cochran said. "These officials are charged with the responsibility of prosecuting the war and should be at their jobs just as much as possible."

The public is confused by conflicting headlines. Congress is made to look foolish.

Martin Dies and his committee investigating "un-American activities" have a terrific labor record in the house. The work of the Dies committee largely covers the same trucks carefully investigated by J. Edgar Hoover's FBI.

Instead of working quietly and efficiently as does the FBI, the Dies committee mingles and runs and thereby, in my opinion, damages the lawmaking process. As Congressman Cochran pointed out, congress was not intended to be a muckraking body.

With 58 investigations in progress, exclusive of the two inquiries by Montgomery Ward, congress has taken up where Sherlock Holmes left off.

Several years ago the Dies committee established permanent offices in all principal cities of the country. Those offices are still open for business, sometimes next door to the local FBI office. That added up, of course, to a neat little sack full of patronage.

No matter what Martin Dies says publicly about why he's quitting congress, the excesses of his committee must have had something to do with it. People—and not only the special groups that he attacked—were fed up with that hit-or-miss spectacle.

It remained for a woman with good common sense, Rep. Winifred C. Stanley of New York to propose in a formal resolution that the two inquiries into Montgomery Ward be combined in one responsible, fair minded men—and women. Miss Stanley should be included—could give honest consideration to the whole problem of governmental powers in war time.

As Representative Stanley said, this would increase efficiency and economize on time. Thus far her resolution lies quietly buried in the house.

Both house and senate would do well to consider it. What comes out of conflicting investigations and conflicting reports is likely to have the look of campaign literature.

Pioneer Business Man to Quit Buhl

BUHL, May 20—Buhl is about to lose another pioneer business man with the imminent departure of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Merrick from the city. Mr. Merrick recently disposed of their last piece of property here, their home on Ninth St., to Bert Bolingbroke, manager of the Bozeman Hunting company.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrick plan to leave soon for Los Angeles for a visit with their daughter, and plan to eventually settle in California, though they will visit their other children before settling down.

Mr. Merrick came to Buhl before the town had a railroad. He owned and operated the Merrick Hardware and Furniture store here for 28 years, selling in 1942 to Glenn Wyatt. He has been active in community affairs for these many years, serving at different times on the city council, the school board and in the Chamber of Commerce. At one time he was president of the State Retail association.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrick have three children, William, who is in the navy, Mrs. R. B. McGeorge, El Paso, Texas, whose husband is a major in the dental corps, and Mrs. B. T. Johnson, Los Angeles.

AS TIME GOES BY

Leonard Blandford, of Uncle Sam's army, landed in Honolulu on Memorial day, 1943, and on June 1, 1943, wrote the following letter to his parents:

"Dear Mom and Dad:

"We got on board ship and left the embarkation point for we didn't know where. It sure was a funny feeling to see the good old U. S. A. disappear from sight. I never knew I was in love with my country before. We were on ship nine days. . . Everyone was glad to see land.

"I am here in the Hawaiian Islands and it's just as beautiful as it has ever been described. The weather is perfect all the time. Wish you could be here to eat the fresh pineapples; I also noticed large fields of avocados, so I hope I get some of those, too. I ate a mango today that one of the lieutenants gave me, and I found out there are date palms here. However, I haven't found any bananas yet, but I did have a cocoanut off one of the trees.

"I wish you could be here to see these flowers! There are also beautiful trees that have blooms on them; they call them 'Royal Flames.' And around the camp are hedges of hibiscus. . . Sorry to hear it is getting hot in Idaho. Two mosquito aren't bad here now. On my day off, I went to the beach where people were swimming and riding the surfboards. It was really beautiful. I would like to live here in later life."

A few days ago, his parents received a letter written May 7, 1944. Young Blandford, now a sergeant, has been in Honolulu almost a year.

"Dear Mom and Dad:

"I just took a shower and climbed into bed. It has been terribly hot this week and really miserable with lots of mosquitos, too, as usual. I never knew I had so much blood until these mosquitos started taking it out a quart at a time. The rainy season has started here and it really pours. The streets are flooded. What a hell of a rock this place is! I'll never come back to these islands again as long as I live."

Dear P. B.:

Ray Agee was gunning again the other day, this time from a comfortable chair in the attorney office where he was arguing the merits of one of Warren Lowery's 30-30s. Ye sheriff was pointing up the qualities of the firearm when Ray piped up:

"You set me up a good fat police man about 200 yards across the lawn there and I'll try her out."

Warren came back, "If you got him at 200 yards, it'd have to be a pretty good gun."

"Well," answered Ray, "I'm willing to take the chance."

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK—It is always embarrassing to honest, ethical reporters to have to answer President Roosevelt's charges of misrepresentation and the assumption that reporters write to their bosses' orders, because we know that in at least one conspicuous case the President knows what he is talking about.

That is the case of John Hostiffer, formerly of the Chicago Tribune, who about two years married the Roosevelts' daughter, Anne, and changed his politics when he changed employers. Mr. Boettiger is overseas now in the business of administering military government in conquered countries, presumably on leave from Mr. Hearst's Seattle Post-Intelligencer, of which he was editor, although I am not sure of his present status there.

Undoubtedly when he was courting the girl and visiting the White House back in the early days of the new deal, the President and Johnny had many a laugh over the strange situation in which they found themselves. John would go to the President's press conferences and ask him sly questions and then go back to the office of the Chicago Tribune Tribune and write pieces for the paper warning the country that the man in the White House and the "new deal professorial as Hugh Johnson called the brain trust, were plotting the absolute ruin of this nation, lock, hook and sinker.

Having done this under his own signature, which was assurance to his readers that he sincerely believed what he had written, he would shove back his chair and tear up the street peak the transition to the family which he was about to join. It is doubtful that, as early as that, when most of the people and the papers were honeymooning with the new administration and withholding judgment on its ultimate aims and apparent defects, any other individual in the United States wrote with such undeviating suspicion and bitterness about the President and his program and the aims of the people about him.

He saw communism all over the place then and warned the people. He was not a skilful writer, which is not to be laughed at for he is a pretty good gun."

pretty good craftsman), that there was a plot afoot to increase taxes on business to a point at which the private operators would have to give up, so then to kick private business into the federal bureaucracy and under government management. You can make excellent Republican campaign book for the 1944 contest out of reprints of Johnny's warnings and predictions, some of which have come true, published under his signature in those early days.

The fact that John wrote such pieces under his name is important because it means, rather that he believed what he wrote and scrapped all his beliefs in a snap of your fingers when he left Robert P. McCormick to go to Mr. Hearst, or that he was coloring his stuff and writing contrary to his convictions and with intent to deceive public in the hope that the salary which he was receiving from McCormick. He was positively ferocious against the new deal and most of its personalities.

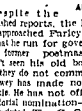

Now it is true that Mr. Hearst is no new dealer and I do not understand the arrangement by which John was enabled to be a new dealer when he went to Seattle. Hearst runs the Seattle paper from the Newspaper Guild and the straight fascists regime which Dave Beck of the teamsters' union had set up in Seattle, and the entire northwest.

He may have yielded to the quaint southern political dictum which says "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em." Anyway, after he married the President's daughter and took over the job in Seattle, John became a new dealer as ardent now as he had been bitter a short time before, and his is the most conspicuous conversion of all Republicans who have undertaken to inform and advise the readers of newspapers on matters affecting their liberties. No other journalist of the time has so openly invited a suspicion that in opposing the new deal he sang for his supper.

ANALYZING CURRENT NEWS FROM NEW YORK

LEADERS — If the election is close, the empire state, home of Roosevelt and Dewey, may decide the contest.

Albert Leman

And the attitudes of two other New Yorkers, Wendell Willkie and Farley, may tip the balance. National leaders have a lot of guessing about this pair; here is what each is known to insiders in their own city:

Despite the published reports, the President has not approached Farley for suggestions that he run for governor. In fact, the former postmaster general hasn't seen his old boss since 1942 and they do not communicate.

Dewey has made no overtures to Willkie. He has not offered him the senatorial nomination—as the story has been made—by the Republican committee, dominated by the governor, will select the candidate without benefit of convention.

Those who predict the way Jim or Wendell will jump are merely speculating. Neither has made up his mind. Farley, because of his position as chairman of the Democratic state committee, is on the tougher spot. He must wait until the last before the national meeting. Willkie can take his time.

Regardless of the cynics, such is the fight with courage and zeal for what he believes to be a matter of principle that rises above political considerations. When he does so the man of that frame of mind, startling things can happen.

PEACE—Despite hectoring by new dealers Farley holds his grip on party regulars—a tremendous personal tribute, considering that now he has no patronage plums to scatter.

Many G. O. P.-ers think Willkie is washed up.

Perhaps he is more disliked than in Wall street, where his former utility pals look upon him as a turncoat. Yet, Willkie, who will be 52 in two important financial publications forecast that his moves will have a profound effect in November, "He is the coming man of the Republican, as far as the campaign or the future of the Republican party is concerned."

Willkie's Wisconsin defeat has made him free to speak without the limitations that always constrain a leading candidate. He will soon go to his Indiana farm where he will pull a few weeds, write a couple of magazine articles and ponder his next step.

He will weigh Dewey's words, silences and actions before he announces what part he will play in the campaign. He believes that a practical program of international cooperation is necessary for permanent peace, without which there can be no American economic prosperity or security. And he intends to do something about it.

ALLIANCE—Brushing aside Mr. Dewey's recent address to newspaper publishers in which he eulogized Cordell Hull's foreign policies, Willkiettes will challenge the sincerity of the governor's stand on international cooperation by putting this question to the acid test: "Will you announce in advance of the election that you will block the elevation of Robert M. La Follette to head the senate foreign relations committee?"

Their reason for the strange query is this: The Wisconsin Progressive party recently bolted the new deal and took out flat footedly for a return to old-fashioned nationalism.

The state's C. O. P. convention joined the movement by deleting the platform plank—"We do not believe in the isolation of the United States from the rest of the world to the detriment of permanent peace and a firm relationship between nations."

Under the circumstances of the two parties is of more than local consequence. If the Republicans gain control of the United States senate, Wisconsin legislator is slated to succeed Sen. Tom Connally as chairman of the powerful foreign relations committee. Members ranking above the Badger state Progressives are Sen. Hiram W. Johnson and Arthur Capper, both old and sickly for the grilling post.

SPOKESMAN — As the upper chamber must pass on all treaties, LaFollette, an out-and-out isolationist, would be the key figure in framing with such matters and could prevent international cooperation as did his famous father in the days of Woodrow Wilson.

Willkiettes contend that here is a case for deeds. They say that if Governor Dewey, the accepted head of the G. O. P., fails to denounce his opposition to a specific move that may wreck a program of world cooperation, he, because of his political ambitions, will be on the shaky ground of playing politics with foreign affairs in the senate. Such speeches about postwar teamwork with Britain, Russia and China mean nothing.

DRAFT DIRECTOR TO VISIT BOARDS

BOISE, May 20 (U.P.)—Brig. Gen. M. G. McConnel, Idaho director of selective service, said today he plans to meet with every local board in the state within the next two weeks to clarify procedure for the immediate reclassification into deferred status of all men over 26 in essential industry.

"Our problem now," said the general, "is to get these men reclassified and back to work."

McConnel who this week returned from a meeting in Washington of all state selective service directors called by National Director Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, said Hershey stressed the immediate necessity of reclassifying men over 26 as the time when they may be needed to fill military quotas is remote. Hershey said he expected to fill all quotas through December with men under 26 plus volunteers, delinquents and those least essentially employed in the 26-29 age group.

McConnel said the only delaying factor in reclassifying the men now was the action of local boards and that he hoped to speed this up in his meetings with each board.

At the meeting of directors in Washington, Hershey pointed out that the army had reached its required strength of 7,700,000 men, according to plan April 5, and that the navy was only 300,000 short of its anticipated strength as of that date.

National headquarters has definitely ordered reclassification into 2-A and 3-B of all men over 29 in essential industry and all men 26-29 in the most essential occupations, with essentiality to be determined by the local boards.

POMONA ACCEPTS 9 NEW MEMBERS

JEROME, May 20 — Nine new members were given the Pomona degree at last night's meeting of the North Side Pomona Grange, which was held in the Pleasant Plains Grange hall, bringing the total of new Pomona members to 100 since the membership drive began last fall.

The success of the membership drive will be celebrated with a banquet meeting to be held in the Jerome American Legion hall July 20. E. T. Taylor, Couer d'Alene, master of the Idaho State Grange, will be the principal speaker at the banquet.

State Sen. S. L. (Vern) Thorpe spoke to the group on the various departments of state government, and stressed the need of a better understanding of where the tax dollar goes.

It was announced that hearing will be held at 2 p.m. June 12 in the Jerome county commissioners' chambers for a fire control district in the county. The district, if approved, will later set up its organizations and will elect officers. Reports at the Pomona meeting disclosed that a good sum had been received from the recent benefit auction held at Appleton school house, and the entire funds will go to aid in inaugurating the fire control district.

It was announced that a memorial service for deceased Grange members will be held May 28.

The next meeting of the Pomona Grange was set for 8:30 p. m., June 15 at Canyonside.

Members of the Pleasant Plains Grange served refreshments.

You'll See This Stallion at Horse Show

Fine Saddle Horses Will Be Featured at Big Show July 3-4

Some of the finest American saddle horses raised in southern Idaho will be seen at the second annual Magic Valley horse show, scheduled for July 3 and 4, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Stewart, managers, said Saturday. The show, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Frontier Riding club, will be held at Jaycee park.

Leading Breeder

One of the most widely-known breeders of American saddle horses in Twin Falls county is J. Frank Henry, Kimberly, who brought the fine black stallion Grand Stonewall (by Stonewall King) from Missouri two years ago. He also imported several registered mares.

Some of these mares have had foals. Mares owned by several others also have borne colts, and the population of fine horses in this section is increasing rapidly.

American Product

The American saddle bred horse is strictly an American product. They were bred originally in Kentucky, and were cross between easy-riding pleasure horses and racers. Although they show unusual high life and high action, they are friendly and gentle and respond to training like no other horse, according to Mrs. J. S. Feldhusen, publicity chairman for the show.

They are strictly a pleasure and show horse. Their gaits make them easy riding and beautiful to watch.

They are unsuitable for hard riding as their manner of going tires them quicker than a straight-gaited western horse.

The three-gaited horse is also American saddle bred but does not show the slow gait and rack. In shows he has mane roached and tail set and shaved.

Rules governing the American saddle horse entries, as drawn up by Mrs. Feldhusen and Dr. H. R. Groome, are as follows (clip and save as these will not be repeated in the horse show program):

Rules for Five-Gaited Horses

Five-gaited horses should have long manes and tails. The tail is usually set, but those which do not will not be penalized.

The saddle horse five distinct gaits, to be judged on conformation, soundness, manners, style and way of going.

The five gaits are: Walk, slow gait (which goes by any of three names—fox trot, running walk or slow pace), trot, rack and canter.

The walk is a one, two, three, four gait, only hardly as firm and pronounced as one as in the three gaited horse.

The slow gait is scarcely faster than a good walk, with each foot in motion separately but with an easy rhythmic action.

Rack is similar in smoothness and execution, but very much faster and greater in action.

The trot is square and firm with extreme speed and brilliance.

The canter is smooth and rhythmic. It should be borne in mind that despite the fact that a five-gaited horse in the rack and trot must be given the credit to be at the expense of balance, as in all the five gaits the horse keeps most correctly under his body. A five-gaited horse should have brilliance and show presence but at the expense of control and perfection of gaits.

1. Conformation, substance, finish, style, beauty, manners, way of going and appointments will be given such weight as the judge shall determine.

2. Most back readily, must stand for rider to mount and dismount if called for by judge.

3. No artificial appliances except quarter boots allowed in saddle classes.

Rules governing three-gaited saddle horse entries, as set forth by Tom Ainsworth, are as follows:

Three-Gaited Saddle Horse Classes

Roached manes and shaved tails not required. Braided manes and weighted tails required.)

A. All horses shall enter the ring at the trot; shall go to the right and continue trotting at will until ordered to change.

B. All horses shall be worked at least once around the ring at each gait, then reversed and worked at the discretion of the judge and in such manner as he deems advisable. Not less than two horses shall be shown at any time. When required by the ring master of the judge, horses shall be lined up properly and remain until ordered out.

C. Horses shall be lined up after preliminary workout shall then be individually asked to back and judged for conformation and soundness.

1. Conformation, 40 per cent; performance and mannerism, 60 per cent.

2. The qualifying gaits for three-gaited saddle horses are:

a. The walk: True, flat footed, rapid and elastic.

b. The trot: Square, collected and balanced, and free from hackney form.

3. The canter: Smooth, slow and straight on both leads.

Del Taylor, chairman of the western stock show horse class, Saturday called attention to a misprint of the western stock rules in section 3 on equipment, which was published recently.

"In regard to bits, spade (also known as Spanish), half-breed bit or one bit or bit of such or barkamore or barkamore bit may be used," Taylor said. These words were left out of the rules as printed.

War-Limited Five Man Staff Actually Improves 17 Parks

They are growing in little patches, after the fashion that one finds them in Shoshone basin, their leaves shimmering in the sunlight, like spangles on a circus rider's costume. Not all of them are growing in their transplanted homes, but the percentage is sufficiently large to assure the superintendent that quaking aspens can become a part of the natural setting at Shoshone falls park.

Leaf mold, taken from the Minidoka forest, and tucked in around their feet, should give the trees an "at home" feelilng. During the last few years, the parks department has gone each fall to Shoshone basin, and brought back a load of leaf mold, taken from the aspen groves.

This is placed in a stock pile, and kept until spring, when it is needed to enrich the soil of the various areas. It is scattered in the fall, because of the condition of the roads in the spring, making it almost impossible to get access to the leaf mold at the season when it is most needed, Stewart said.

Fireplaces, Fountains

Before the outing season is over this year, the parks department hopes to build fire places and drinking fountains at the falls park. The plan is to install fireplaces in the picnic areas, such as at Kiwanis nook, replacing the more primitive cooking devices now available.

Other improvements at the Shoshone park include the setting out of 200 trees this spring, including thornless honey locusts, grown by Stewart himself. They are thriving and are grouped in gulches for a natural, wooded effect.

A rotating system of ridding city park of its dying soft maples and other inferior trees, in the fall, and replacing them in the spring with more desirable trees, is a forward-looking project, being carried out to vastly improve the park's appearance in the coming years.

Garden Club Helps

"The Twin Falls Garden club has been particularly helpful in suggesting types of replacement trees, and their suggestions are being carried out whenever possible," Stewart said. "We are convinced that we shall have to be content with slower growing trees, but trees that will endure beyond a 20-year period."

Fourteen trees including soft maples that looked like they needed blood transfusions; a couple of sycamores and elms that were going the same sickly route, were removed last fall. They have been replaced by 21 trees this spring.

Stewart favors oaks, sugar maples, blue ash, American and European lindens, hackberry and the Idaho locust, in the replacement program. Hard maples are finding places in the park because they produce heavy leaves, furnish ample shade, and in the fall present foliage in a riot of bronze, auburn, crimson, gold and ochre colors.

Against Siberian Elms

"We are discouraging the planting of Siberian elms, because we park workers have found that they produce only brashy, spindly branches; do not create much shade, and are highly susceptible to aphis and bugs—in other words, a nuisance," Stewart declared.

Although the men who keep the parks in such spic and span condition, have almost more work than they can handle, they have found time to install two new slides at Harmon and Drury parks, and have brought into bloom and beauty a vast variety of flowers and shrubbery.

They are discouraged by the type of vandalism that produces beaten down iris beds; that shows bike wheels spiraling through peony beds; that reveals trampled down soil in certain areas of the City park rock garden, so hard-packed that it had to be dug out and replaced with new earth before anything could grow.

But they are more than gratified when they see people enjoying the results of their handiwork, appreciating the background of comfort and beauty that the parks create for picnicking parties, band concerts, community church services, school outings and organizations' functions.

Meant for Enjoyment

"We want the parks to be enjoyed. If I am notified a couple of days ahead of time by individuals or organizations wishing to stage picnics or gatherings in certain areas of the parks, I can arrange to have tables and benches placed in advance. It is also possible, if notified in advance, to have the section free of irrigation water," Stewart said.

He can be telephoned at his home either at the noon hour or in the evening. There is no telephone at the parks department plant, he explained.

And next time you walk through the park, pay particular attention to the "trees of heaven." They are planted in the park corners opposite the churches surrounding the park. And there's a church on every corner. Count 'em yourself, if you doubt it.

Loose Dogs Offer Problem in City

"Dogs running at large are becoming more of a problem every day in Twin Falls," Municipal Judge J. O. Pumphrey said yesterday.

"What with victory gardens being planted and home owners spending hours in transplanting ornamental flowers, one's patience is soon exhausted when he finds hours of labor wasted by dogs digging and tracking through garden plots," Judge Pumphrey said.

He suggested that dog owners take every precaution" to prevent their pets from inflicting damage."

HUSBAND SOUGHT IN DANCER DEATH

HOLLYWOOD, May 20 (U.P.)—The bruised body of Rena Larson Bennett, former dancer who once told her mother, "Men are harmless—no one will hurt me," was found stuffed behind the walibed of her expensive apartment last night.

Police immediately began a widespread search for the husband she was preparing to divorce, Stephan Richard Bennett, 46, an ex-convict.

The attractive 44-year-old Mrs. Bennett had been dead four or five days, detectives said. Death came either from a fractured skull or strangulation.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Larson, mother of the victim, called police after she visited her daughter's apartment and noticed bloodstains on a bed sheet and a towel.

A police search revealed the body, wrapped in a blanket and hidden behind the bed among a pile of luggage. Police found bruises on her throat and body and a wound on the head.

Bennett was released from the county jail Sunday under $100 bond on a forgery charge brought by his first wife, Mrs. Veronica Bender. Mrs. Bender charged that Bennett, alias Stephan Bender, was not legally divorced from her when he married the former dancer eight months ago.

Second: "Since liquor advertisement is insidious and untrue we wish to uphold the state resolution calling it unfair propaganda and ask that it be suppressed by law."

Buddy Poppy Sale Doubles '43 Mark

Four thousand buddy poppies — double last year's figure—were sold in the annual sale of the Twin Falls Veterans of Foreign Wars post here yesterday, for a gross return of $443.84, it was said last night by A. M. Peters, adjutant of the local post.

Subtracting the $184 cost of the poppies, said Peters, leaves $259.84 for the V. F. W. veterans' welfare relief fund.

The buddy poppies are made and sold by patients in veterans' hospitals.

The small red flowers were sold on the streets Saturday by members of the auxiliary and members of Camp Fire group sponsored by Mrs N. O. Johnson. Bill Summers had charge of the buddy poppy event for the post, and Mrs. Gene Helms for the auxiliary.

Peters said the post was "extremely grateful" for the excellent response of the public to the buddy poppy sale.

Quarterly L. D. S. Conference Today

Elder George F. Richards, a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles, will represent general authorities of the L.D.S. church at the quarterly conference of the local church, to be held today in the Twin Falls tabernacle.

Accompanying Elder Richards will be William B. Ryberg, prominent Salt Lake City contractor, who will speak on the welfare plan, announced members of the Twin Falls stake presidency. The presidency includes Claude Brown, president; F. Lyman Schenk, first counselor, and Percy Lawrence, second counselor.

At the special meeting held to plan details of the conference, it was disclosed that the Twin Falls L.D.S. member-ship had its first regular meeting 25 years ago as a part of the Cassia stake. With headquarters in Oakley, the membership then totalled 800. Since that time members of the L.D.S. stake have quintupled in number, bringing the present membership to more than 4,000. The stake now owns five church buildings and also holds services in the Castleford and Filer branches.

Program for today's conference has been scheduled as follows: Priesthood meeting, 9 a.m.; general session, 10:30 a.m.; welfare meeting, 1 p.m.; general session, 2:30 p.m. A special session has been planned for 8 p.m. and will be under the direction of stake Sunday school workers.

New Drive Aims At Waste Paper

A concerted drive for waste paper will start Tuesday, May 23, but the collection of paper will not be made until four days in June, from the sixth to the ninth, when people are requested to have it ready for the collectors, Joe Koehler, chairman of the drive, announced Saturday.

Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls in each community are in charge of the collection of waste paper, In addition to getting paid for the paper they collect, the boys and girls will be given opportunity to compete for a free show, refreshments and cash prizes offered by the county waste paper drive committee, Koehler said.

Aleutians Island Worry: Weather And Solitude too

"Weather and solitude were our two biggest problems at that outpost in the Aleutians," said Pvt. Von J. Watson, who ended a seven-day leave here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Watson, this morning, after 21 months in the mountainous interior of Alaska and the last nine in the Aleutians where he participated in the second wave of a landing action on one of the occupied islands.

WATSON

Reluctant to speak of the action he has seen, Watson concentrated on the living conditions on the previously uninhabited tundra wastes far out in the Pacific.

The Williwaw Wind"

"There's a wind out there they call the williwaw. It springs up suddenly and reaches gale proportions in no time. We saw very little sunlight, maybe two or three days of it in the nine months I was there.

"The only signs of life there are sea gulls and blue foxes, and other stray birds occasionally. Some of the men made pets of the foxes; they got to seem like dogs to me here.

"After the original landings we didn't see many Japs. Sometimes through reconnaissance would fly over, but generally the weather or their own weakness held them back, it seemed.

"Temperatures in the islands ranged from 20 to 60 degrees, but with that wind, 40 above was worse than 60 below in the interior of Alaska. There was a lot more to do on the mainland too. Plenty of wild game and fish. Thirty inch rainbow trout are not uncommon in the Russian river.

Praises Red Cross

Private Watson had high praise for the Red Cross, particularly the station at Seward, Alaska, which succeeded in contacting him at an Aleutians outpost last winter when his father, C. D. Watson, was seriously ill. He also complimented the USO headquarters here.

A dinner party was given in his honor Friday night by Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Rose, his brother-in-law and sister.

Workers on Hand For Farm Needs

"Plenty of resident workers are available for weeding, hoeing and day labor," said A. J. Meeks, U. S. employment office head here Saturday, adding that anyone in this area in need of such labor should call or appear at the office on Second street east any week day between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Meeks mentioned that the closing of schools had added considerably to the labor pool available here.

"Three boys, none over 16, came in here today with a $25 check they received for one day's work weeding onions," he related.

He further announced that the hiring of imported labor is prohibited for any type work other than agriculture unless such hiring is certified by the U. S. employment office.

PLANS SET FOR BIBLE CLASSES

The Twin Falls vacation Bible school, sponsored by the Twin Falls Ministerial association, will open at 9 a. m. Monday, May 29, in the Methodist church and will be held every morning, except Saturday, until June 2.

Classes and courses of study have been arranged for children from the pre-school age to and including sixth grade students, stated Mrs. H. H. Burkhart, general superintendent, who emphasized that it was non-denominational and open to all.

"Bible Friends and Friends of Today" will be their subject and Mrs. Walter Senften is department director. Teachers will be Mrs. W. B. Skaggs, Mrs. Claude Jones and Mrs. Clifton J. Smallwood. Mrs. L. S. Oliver will act as assistant.

The junior department, which includes nine-, 10- and 11-year olds, or fourth, fifth and sixth graders, will go to the Christian church for study in "Choosing God's Way." Director of the department is Mrs. Catherine Potter and her teachers will include Mrs. Vernon Grimm, Mrs. Albert Mylnar and Mrs. W. Z. Kibbe. The Rev. W. B. Skaggs will assist.

Department classes will close at 11:45 each morning.

Approximately 15 junior and senior high school students will assist with music, handwork and story-telling in the departments.

"This school is an answer to a need for guided and creative summer activities and is becoming recognized as an important factor in the educational program of both church and community," stated Dr. G. L. Clark, chairman of the ministerial association's vacation school committee.

Bott Appoints Rupert Lawyer Personal Aide

BOISE, May 19 (AP)—Jack Baker, son of Minidoka county prosecutor Hugh A. Baker, has been named private secretary to Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen.

Honorably discharged from the army two weeks ago after serving 20 months, Baker is a graduate of the University of Idaho law school and has been a member of the Idaho bar since 1942.

Simultaneously with the announcement of Baker's appointment, the governor reported that he has renamed Howard A. Cullimore, director of the bureau of insurance and appointed James A. Dement, his former private secretary who filled Cullimore's office when the latter was called for army service, license director in the beer revenue department.

MINIDOKA WATER PROJECT OKAYED

WASHINGTON, May 20 (U.P.)—The senate appropriations committee today approved the 1945 interior department bill after boosting the house-approved $66,552,580 to $123,629,345, making the total higher than the administration had requested.

Sen. Carl Hayden, D., Ariz., said he expects speedy senate action on the bill early next week.

Included were an increase of $9,500,000 in the reclamation bureau's general fund and an appropriation of $600,000 for water conservation and utilization projects. These provided:

Boise, Ida., $100,000; Minidoka, Ida., $16,500; Owyhee, Ore., $180,000; Columbia basin in Wash., $900,000; Yakima, Wash., $270,000; Boulder canyon, Colo., $968,000.

The committee's figures, $35,576,765 over the house bill, exceeded budget bureau requests by $8,306,950. It was $9,677,269.36 higher than the 1944 appropriation.

Hayden said the senate increases were made because the interior department, heavily engaged in war activities, had been steadily reduced from $272,365,000 in 1942 to $113,000,000 in 1944.

"Then the house came along this year and wanted to lower it to $87,652,580," he said. "It seemed to us that the department had been cut to the bone already. We felt the department's war activities justified an increase."

The committee also recommended:

1. Deletion of the controversial house amendment which would strike from the payroll any male between the ages of 18 and 30 who received a service deferment on any grounds other than dependency or as being necessary to the war effort.

2. Continuation of a $200,000 appropriation for the construction of power lines from California's central valley project, and a similar appropriation of $200,000 for construction of the Kings river project in California.

3. An appropriation of $8,000,000 for experiments to develop synthetic fuels from mineral products.

4. An increase of $3,000,000 over the budget bureau's $3,000,000 estimate for an investigation of the raw-material resources for the production of steel, making a total of $6,000,000.

5. A $1,055,800 increase for the solid fuels administration, to aid in conservation of solid fuels for war.

"Everything to make living more pleasant"

GIRL TELLS OF CHILD'S SLAYING

YUMA, Ariz., May 20 (U.P.)—A dry-eyed, unwed mother not yet out of her teens today told why she threw her nine-month-old daughter to her death in the Colorado river.

"She's better off," Mildred Forsyth, 18, told sheriff's officers in a flat voice. "I didn't want her to grow up as an illegitimate child and her father wouldn't marry me.

"I told him I would throw Mildred Loulee into the river if he didn't, but he didn't pay any attention, so I threw her in."

Cpl. Robert Mell, with whom she had been living, denied he was the child's father.

"I figured it out," the mother said. "If I killed Mell he would feel no pain, or if I killed myself, he wouldn't. But the baby's death hurt his feelings."

Warned Mell

The tall, tawny-skinned girl told County Attorney P. C. Byrne she had warned Mell.

"I told him yesterday if he didn't marry me before noon, I would throw the baby in the river. He just went on with the phrase.

"I called a taxi and took the baby and went across the river to Fort Yuma Then I got out and walked about a block or two toward the river and stood on the bank a minute.

"Then I threw the baby in.

"She struggled a little and then sank."

"She's better off."

"Then I went back home and called up Mell and told him what I did, and after he came home, I called up the sheriff.

"He wouldn't marry me, and I didn't want her growing up under those conditions."

Divorced May 9

She said she had been married to Enoch Skelton, St. Louis, Mo., but obtained a final divorce decree May 9. She had been living with Mell for the preceding eight months, she said, on his promise to marry her the day her divorce became final. He refused.

The baby was born July 28, 1943, at St Louis, and Mell contended he could not have been the father because he had not previously been living with her.

WANTS FAIR OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL BUYERS

Editor, Times-News:

These clerks in town aren't the only ones who miss out on scarce items.

I'm a country housewife and can't run to town quite every day to see if they have a certain item in stock. The best bet anymore seems to be to slip in the back door for flims, bananas, Kleenex and countless other items.

It burns me up to have clerks in some of the stores tell me they have none of certain items, then see a friend step up and get exactly what they told me there were none of.

Why don't all stores put out their stock open to all and when they sell out, honestly say there are no more?

I don't mind limiting at all because at least then I can get a share. But this out and out favoritism makes me (and many others) mad.

OPPOSES BOTT FOR SENIOR CITIZEN ACT REPEAL

Editor, Times-News:

I notice by the paper Governor Bottolfsen is seeking nomination for the U. S. senate seat. Ye Gods! What does he think the people of Idaho are?

Such gall! He must think that the greatest man that was ever on earth, was taking just to hear his head rattle, when he said, "Take heed that no man deceive you."

We were deceived in our legislators on house bill 74 to repeal the senior citizens' grants act but that was their fault. But if we let them deceive us again, and disfranchise us, that will be our fault. For by their fruits ye shall know them, and by their fruits they denied the constitutional rights of 75,000 legal voters of Idaho.

I am no more a Democrat than I am a Republican, but then why keep them in power who have raised up their heel against us? When we have such man as Glen Taylor, a chip off the old block Col. Dick Taylor, the father of the Twin Falls greenback, which was as Lincoln said the greater blessing the people ever had, their own money to pay their own debts.

Glen H. Taylor, who is asking for the same U. S. senate seat, comes out on an eight point platform in which he says preserve true private enterprise. That's the legacy we are or would be so proud of. Give back to congress the right to issue money. That would be the blessing that Lincoln bestowed upon the people. Their own money to pay their own debts, and give $60 a month to senior citizens over 60.

Give Taylor a chance and he will sing a different song and it won't be to the tune "Taylor not present" or "Taylor not voting," on questions that the people are concerned in.

MINING INQUIRY GROUP SELECTED

BOISE, May 20 (U.P.)—A three-man mineral committee to direct investigation and development of Idaho mineral deposits under the congressional Boykin steel shortage committee was appointed today by Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen.

The committee—Dean A. W. Fahrenwald of the University of Idaho school of mines and executive of the state bureau of mines and geology; Otto Frye, Grofino cement producer, and Harry Marsh, secretary of the Idaho Mining association—will investigate deposits of fluorite at Meyers cove in the Salmon river area and a deposit of iron ore near Weiser.

Bottolfsen said he appointed the committee after S. H. Lorraine, director of the federal bureau of mines, called the two mineral deposits to the attention of the Boykin committee as potential sources of war vital ore.

The Boykin committee was created to administer a congressional steel shortage investigation appropriation passed by congress two years ago and now about to be renewed.

Marsh said the fluorite deposit was thought to be one of the largest in the west. Fluorite is used in refining steel, in the production of insecticides and in the manufacture of high octane aviation gasoline.

The iron ore deposit near Weiser, Marsh said, is estimated at one million tons.

The governor said he appointed the committee to act in cooperation with the congressional group and aid in the development of Idaho mineral resources.

Capt. Broadhead Mistook Castle For Flak Burst

AN EIGHTH AAF FIGHTER STATION, England — Ancient French castles are a source of delight to springtime tourists in France a few years ago.

But one of those architectural masterpieces created an entirely different impression on Capt. Joseph E. Broadhead, Rupert, Ida.

Signaled Leader

The P-51 Mustang pilot who commands a fighter squadron was cruising home from a bomber escort mission to a target south of Paris when he observed a gaggle between P-51s and Me 109s going on pelago.

"I leaned over in the cockpit and saw the terrific scrap below," he said. "So I went down and got me one. I chased him on the deck for 20 miles and finally saw him roll over the fuselage and the flaps open just a little before he reached the ground.

"I thought I was a goner once. The pilot led me over a group of fires and suddenly I saw a big white tower which looked like one of those flak jobs to me. But it was an ancient French castle, thank the lord!"

Fifth Victory

Captain Broadhead's victory, his fifth in combat operations brought the group's total to nine for the one mission. Lieut. Col. Donald W. Graham's fighter group closed out the month with 73 enemy aircraft destroyed—all in the air.

The Idahoan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Broadhead, and his wife and daughter, all live in Rupert. The flier has named his ship "Baby Mike" after his son Michael.

CHETNIK LEADER OUSTED BY KING

LONDON, May 20 (U.P.) — King Peter II, seeking to form a "unity cabinet" to end fratricidal warfare in Yugoslavia, announced today that Gen. Draja Mikhailovich had been relieved of his post as war minister in the exiled government.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, he also said Prime Minister Dr. Bozhidar Purovich had been out of office three days and would not be retained in the cabinet.

It was understood Mikhailovich will remain as commander-in-chief of the royal Yugoslav army and it appeared some attempt would be made to effect a reconciliation between him and Marshal Josip (Tito Broz.

Peter denied rumors current in London that former Premier Gen. Dushan Simovitch, who organized the 1941 coup, had been delegated to form a new cabinet.

It was considered unlikely that Dr. Ivan Subasic, former governor of Croatia, would be the new prime minister, although it was believed he may be persuaded to accept some post in the new government.

The king was non-committal about the composition of the new cabinet but indicated some of the names will be a surprise. He was known to be taking a conciliatory attitude toward Broz and some quarters suggested he might even go so far as to offer a post to a partisan representative.

Right now, Peter said he was most concerned with unifying his people.

A LETTER from HOME

Sunday, May 21, 1944

This condensed news-letter prepared by the Times-News may be clipped, inserted in an envelope and mailed to your boy in the service. It will be sent you in a patriotic duty.

● Straw hat day came—and went. Yeah, you're right—it rained a little and was cold all day—but anyway, it didn't SNOW! Some quick local news is that Charles Sieber, retiring president of the T. F. Jaycees was elected state president at the Jaycee war convention in Boise. The boys brought home plenty of cups and awards, too, to testify to their civic activities here in Twin Falls. Incidentally, Virginia Sieber's wife, couldn't let her husband get ahead of her and she was elected state president of the Jay-C-ettes.

● Of interest to the former Twin Falls high school students of a few years back, is the announcement of the coming marriage of Miss Judy Jones to Bob Kimbrough, Castleford, on Friday, May 26. Judy has been teaching the fifth grade in a Castleford school but is now preparing for a life as a farmerette. Here's wishing her much luck and happiness in her future enterprise. Two Twin Falls girls were tapped for the Sophomore honorary, Spurs, at the University of Idaho, Moscow. They are Miss Marian Griggs representing the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house, and Miss Jean Parker who represented the Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Other Magic Valley girls attending the University of Idaho, Moscow, receiving honors are—Miss Marian Franson, Jerome, recently named to head the student body in her senior year, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and also pledged to mortar board, senior women's honorary. For the other women, also former Jerome high school students, single honors have come. Miss Madelyn Sanberg and Miss Joyce McMahon were tapped for Spurs, and Miss Barbara Smith was tapped for cardinal key.

● We received a letter from one lonely sailor stationed at Farragut, asking all of the gorgeous girls in Twin Falls to please write to him. Here is an aggressive fellow—and will undoubtedly get results. His address is James A. Locke SoC, E. M. 2c—2L, Camp Peterson, U. S. N. T. C., Farragut, Idaho. And to the fellows in the service who might want a few leads as to names and phone numbers of our local gals, just write to the above mentioned lonely sailor and borrow his little red book.

● The possibilities of air-line service for Magic Valley increases daily with the filing of the United Airlines for service in and out of Twin Falls. Among other lines which filed is a local group of Bill McRoberts, Kenny Self and Harry Benoit. CARE OF YOUR

CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

Laughing children are our national ideal of happy children. We fondly imagine that all is well with them when they laugh. We would do well to consider what it is they are laughing at before making certain they are quite all right. What they laugh at has a direct relationship to what they are inclined to do in their thoughtless hours and as these hours are counted in their daily living, they become as important as those that are carefully studied and guided.

What is funny in a picture of an old man falling down a flight of stone stairs, his head striking each tread on the way? What is there to laugh about in a murder though the murdered be in here and the victim the villain? Just how funny is stealing sweets from the pantry or icebox in mother's absence? How comical is marital dishonor? These situations are offered to children on the screen, in the cartoons, in the comics, as occasions for laughter.

Laugh at Wrong Incidents

It is not uncommon to hear an audience of children screeching with unholy glee at pictures on the screen that ought to give normal human beings shudders of horror. Of course such pictures ought not to be seen children. But they are. When some of us protested to the mothers, whose children were in these houses looking at these pictures and screaming, howling, hysterical cries in response to the action they said, "They must get out of the flat Saturday mornings."

Must they laugh at horror? Must they giggle over indecencies that bring blushes to the most hardened cheek? Must they see cause for laughter in the suffering of others? If they must then we would better set about building more hospitals for mental patients, more asylums and jails for demented, anti-social, under-developed intelligences.

Cure in Seasoned Opinion

Censorship won't cure this. Laws never cure any situation that is promoted by public acceptance. The law that works is that of the seasoned opinion of the great majority of the people.

The home is the first and the most influential force in a child's life. If father and mother think violence and immorality and bad taste, not to say indecency, are unfunny, they will be able to teach their children that attitude and will have little trouble with their behavior.

Auxiliary Ready For Poppy Sale Next Saturday

Predicting the biggest poppy sale in the history of the American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. H. A. Salisbury, president of the Twin Falls unit, last night announced that plans for the observance here next Saturday, May 27, are progressing rapidly under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Orrin Fuller.

She explained that materials for making the poppies are furnished free to the veterans by the auxiliary and the volunteer workers teach the disabled men to make the poppies; that distribution of the finished product to the American public is under the direction of the auxiliary, and that all proceeds are used for the benefit of the veterans and their dependents.

At the same time, Mrs. Fuller announced that sale headquarters next Saturday would be the Burkholder furniture store, with women of the auxiliary to sell in the business district, and Camp Fire Girls from three groups to canvass the residential section for sale of the little red flower, which will be sold by the auxiliary for 24 years, and is each year becoming more closely identified with the auxiliary and the organization's disabled men.

Camp Fire groups which will assist in the sale are the Tanaka, Sejah Verranda Strong as president and Mrs. Wanda Edwards, guardian; Odako, Nancy Latham, president, and Mrs. Lionel Paine, guardian; Chewanka, Jane Diffendarfer, president, and Mrs. J. S. Diffendarfer, guardian.

But if the heads of the family read trash, laugh at what should distress them, so will their children and their laughter will be reflected in their characters. You cannot laugh at wrongdoing and hold to standards of righteousness at the same time.

There is a laughter that is "like the crackling of thorns under a pot." Much of what passes for humor these days has that quality.

Chinese Honor Students Prize Dolls as Award

Delightful account of the Christmas celebration and other customs of high school children in China, written by an Idaho missionary there, Miss Celia Cowan, and read by Mrs. P. G. Graves entertained 63 members of the Women's Society of Christian Service at their monthly meeting at the Methodist church parlors.

Miss Cowan, who is located in Teochung Swatow, told that during the Christmas celebration, high school youths sing carols throughout the night; and, that prizes at semester graduation ceremonies are dolls, for the three highest students, who prize them highly.

Devotionals led by Mrs. Carl Boyd and a talk by Mrs. James Vandenbark were each woven around the theme of Christian family week.

Little Miss Catherine Potter sang "Jesus Loves Me" and Louise Vandenbark sang "Jesus Bids Us Shine." Each was accompanied by her mother. The girls also repeated in unison a prayer used in the primary department.

Mrs. Gleta Parks, chairman of circle No. 6, and members of the circle were hostesses, arranging tea at a lace-covered table centered with a pottery bowl of white lilacs and tulips. Baskets and vases of other spring flowers were about the parlors. Mrs. F. E. Haynes and Mrs. C. A. McMaster poured.

"If It Isn't Right, Bring It Back"

ON THE SPORT FRONT

By GEORGE P. RAYMOND

American League junior baseball, into which the local post has jumped with both feet this season, may be like the guy who "was all dressed up and no place to go." Ye Olde Sport Scribener has not been informed of another post in this area which is contemplating having a team in the national competition.

But Gene Ostrander, the former Vandal baseball star who will coach the juniors this season, is going to find out soon just what type of competition, if any, that his lads will be compelled to face. He has authorized Harvey Cook, the post adjutant, to write the posts in Rupert, Burley, Paul, Kimberly, Hazelton, Eden, Filer and Buhl—all in the district—to learn whether or not they will enter teams in the competition.

Last year Burley took the district championship by default when no other post entered a team and then played Pocatello for the southern Idaho title—Pocatello in turn lost to Payette for the state crown.

But even though there is no other competition in the district that will not disrupt the program that Ostrander has prepared for the lads. He's going to build for the future—after the war the men who will get put in the state will have teams in the competition.

For that reason, he has stepped up the program. Instead of three nights a week, as planned when the training began a week ago, the drills will be held every night, beginning at 7:30, henceforth. That will give him a chance to work with the smaller boys who will be the Legion players of the future.

The local post has authorized Adjutant Cook to expend funds up to $100 to equip the local lads. Two sets of uniforms are available but some must be reconditioned and the Legion emblem sewed on. Baseballs have been ordered and the old Cowboy batting cage will be repaired.

Tigers Stop Yankees to Prove O'Neill Appraisal

Third of a series

By STEVE O'NEILL

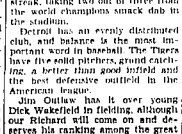

Manager of Detroit Tigers

Detroit got off none too well, but I insisted the Tigers were more formidable than one would suspect from their early pace. The batting Bengals bore out my contention by snapping a Yankee six-game winging streak, taking two out of three, and the world champions smack dab in the stadium.

Detroit has an evenly distributed club, and balance is the most important word in baseball. The Tigers have the solid pitchers, ground control, a better than good infield and the best defensive outfield in the American league.

Jim Outlaw has it over young Dick Wakefield in fielding, although our Richard will come on and deserves his ranking among the great young hitters.

When a club loses a boy like Wakefield, it must expect to suffer from lack of punch, but Charley Hostetter, a 20-year-old recruit, has been a pleasant surprise in that department, and, as you know, Doc Cramer is everlastingly on the bases.

Rudy York

York, Higgins Bat in Runs

This in addition to the main source of our runs-batted-in supply in the infielders, the justly celebrated Rudolph Preston York and Pinky Higgins.

Shortstop Joe Hoover is back, although his draft status is undecided.

I hear Eddie Mayo played on a dime with the Senators, and with Washington, but he certainly has gotten off with the Tigers. He rounded out our infield, made it with his all-around play, hustle and pepper.

Bob Swift and Paul Richards give Detroit an intelligent receiving unit. I can't tell you how pleased I am to have acquired Swift.

We are well equipped with pitchers. The two aces are Paul Trout, Johnny Gorsica and Rufus Gentry, right-handers, and the southpaws, Harold Newhouser and Stubby Overmire. Dizzy Trout held off against the Yankees, really had an afternoon for himself. Gentry bagged 20 for Buffalo last season. Hal Steve O'Neil . . . "It's this way, Walt till York finds the range.

Newhouser has just arrived, is destined to be one of the finest of left-handers. He possesses every requirement, and was practically born to the Tigers.

No Lights in Detroit

Detroit has dropped some tough games due to a paucity of punch, but a club can't be futile forever with such as Mike Higgins and Rudy York in the front line. We'll grind out many a run.

Attendance is up now that the weather has cleared. It wasn't poor when the weather was bad. We drew close to 40,000 people in a Sunday double-header with Cleveland.

Detroit's general manager, Jack Zeller, is not concerned about lighting up Briggs stadium until the war is won.

Let Washington worry about the lighting bill.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—Walter (Monk) Dubiel pitched and batted the Yankees into first place in the American league standings today, as the world champs defeated the Browns 3-2, before 11,790 paid admissions.

Dubiel held the Browns to four hits and made two himself, scoring one and driving in another. He scored the first Yankee run in the fifth after he singled. His double in the eighth drove in Rollie Hemsley with the run that decided the game.

Jack Kramer, winner of five games, hurled a creditable game, but caused his own downfall by committing a balk in the fifth, which allowed George Stirnweiss to score with the second run of the inning.

The triumph ended the Yankees losing streak of four straight.

White Sox Score Lone Run on Hit Winding up in Triple Play

BOSTON, May 20 (AP)—A triple play with the bases loaded highlighted the game today as the Red Sox defeated the White Sox, 8 to 1. A run was scored while the triple play was in progress during the Red Sox half of the first inning.

Leon Culberson scored as Bob Johnson's grounder went to Jimmy Webb, Roy Schalk and Hal Trosky for two outs. Then George Metkovitch was thrown out as he tried to score from second base—Trosky to Thurman Turner—to complete the triple play.

The Reds' only run resulted from Ray Mueller's home run. Howie Schultz led the Dodger attack with two hits, including a homer with two aboard. It was the big first baseman's sixth 1944 circuit clout and gave him a total of 33 runs batted in.

License Sales in Area Greater Than in 1943

Of course, there's gasoline rationing. Yes, sir, there's a tire shortage. Fishing equipment has got down to a few odds and ends. And everybody is so awfully busy.

But you'd think all that was a myth if you'd hung around Magic Valley sporting goods and hardware stores—or any place where fishing licenses were dispensed Saturday. For there it seemed that everybody was going fishing today when the state lifts the lid on general trout angling.

"All that I've done all way, it seems, was to issue licenses," reported Cliff Thompson, manager of the sporting goods department at the Diamond hardware store, Saturday. "It looks like more people are going fishing than last year—in fact, than ever before."

That's what John Rogers at Snowball's said, too, also Hans Thorne at the Brunswick.

Silver to Get Big Play

They also said that from their conversation with license purchasers they had gained the impression that Silver creek east of Hailey and Roseworth in particular would get a big play, although Magic and Salmon reservoir, which have been open for more than a month will continue to draw their share of the patronage.

Lud Drexler, secretary of the Southern Idaho Fish and Game association, said his organization is planning an extensive check of fishing conditions on the opening day. Drexler himself will check on Roseworth and Salmon, while other representatives of the organization will be at Magic, Fish creek, 14 miles north and east of Carey; Silver creek, Griggs creek and Clear lakes.

In Boise, Dick d'Easum, state fish and game department information officer, glanced critically at reports of conservation officers from over the state and issued his cautious opinion that opening day fishing should be "pretty good."

D'Easum explained that mid-week storms which characterized early March in the streams have abated in most sections with the result that waters are not as high as is usual at this time of year. Fishing should be a little better than the normal for opening day, he predicted.

H. C. Shellworth, Boise, perennial holder of the Ida. No. 1 Idaho license, set out today with a party for the Silver creek district.

Most anglers favored worms, worms and spinners, but intimated eggs as opening day lures in preference to flies.

Bag limit in Idaho is 25 fish per day or 15 pounds and one fish in one day. Possession limit is the same. Limit of under six-inch fish is five.

Free Fishing for Some

Servicemen stationed in the state may obtain resident licenses, and those home on furlough may fish on fire permits which may be obtained from conservation officers. Children under 14 do not need licenses. Residents over 65 years old and veterans of the Civil war or Spanish-American wars.

Some waters open later than May 21. Among these are Sagehen reservoir and tributaries which open July 1. Others are:

Goose lake and tributaries, Twin lakes and Lost Valley reservoir in Adams county, June 1; the north fork of the Snake river in Fremont county from Palisade dam to Island Park Land and Cattle company property to the Osborn bridge, July 10; Henry's lake and inlet and its tributaries, June 15; Washington, Fourth-of-July, Frog, Champion, Boulder and Swan lakes in Washington county July 1.

And for those who care—bullfrogs are classified as game fish in Idaho and the season extends from June 21 to Nov. 15. The bag limit is 12 and they may be caught with hook and line only.

Juniors Trek to Slaughter House Creek in "Derby"

Hundreds of junior fishermen will trek today, with the opening of the general trout fishing season, out to Slaughter House creek—and to the Times-News "fish derby."

The creek has been set aside by the Southern Idaho Fish and Game association for girls and boys under 14 years of age who are not required to purchase a license.

Three prizes are offered by the Times-News to the junior fisherman who catch the biggest fish in Slaughter House creek—$3 for the longest, $2 for the next longest and $1 for the third longest.

Fish must be presented for measurement at the news room of the Times-News between 8 and 9 p.m. today. Prizes will be at the Times-News cameraman to obtain photographs of the "derby" champion and runners-up.

Gano Stars in Track Events

WALLA WALLA, Wash., May 20 (AP)—The University of Washington Huskies romped off with the northwest intercollegiate track and field championship today, winning 12 out of 15 first places.

The final tally was Washington 88½, Whitman 44½ and University of Idaho 32.

It remained for Idaho's Jay Gano to achieve the high individual total for the day with 12 points. Gano won both the high jump and broad jump and placed third in the low hurdles.

NAVY WINS IC-4A

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 20 (AP)—Navy's track team, relegated to the also-rans late this week when it was reported that several of the middie stars were ill, romped off with the 68th annual IC-4A cinder crown today by amassing 81 points.

The point aggregate wiped out the Tars' record meet record of 71½ points.

Army was second with 35½ while Dartmouth grabbed third with 28½. Don Burnham retained his mile title, doing 4:17, and also won in the half.

Navy collected five first place medals and tied for a sixth. Jim Pettit rounded home in front of the 220-yard field; George Brown annexed the honors in the discus; Frederic Bouwman leaped 23 feet 2½ inches in the broad jump; Floyd Sessions tied with Army's Phil Lane at 13 feet in the pole vault; Ben Martin's 6 foot in inch leap was the best in the high jump, and Robert Banks was best in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Big Bass Catch

Bassetinos and Hawaiian wigglers proved the piece de resistance for the bass, which averaged about one pound, that Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Meyman, Boise, landed from the Blue Lakes here Saturday.

They also caught 47 trout in the lake and Snake river but the majority of them were small.

Fishing Conditions In Snake Excellent

If State Conservation Officer Grover C. Davis, Filer, were to go fishing today—the opening of the general trout season—he'd try the Snake river. That's what he told the Times-News sports editor late yesterday when the writing gent queried him regarding fishing conditions for the opening. And here's the reason why:

"The Snake river is low and clear — in fact, the fishing conditions are the best there since last July," Davis declared.

Davis' Recommendations

Other fishing spots recommended by Davis were:

Roseworth reservoir—For trolling; water high but will stocked.

Clear lakes, north of Buhl—Clear and should be good for a day or two.

Niagara Springs and Box canyon. Davis reported that from information he has received thousands of fishermen will be on the lakes and streams in this area today.

Hill's Report

Hawley Hill, conservation officer at Burley, made this report on fishing conditions:

Cassia creek—Fair for bait fishing but high and rolly.

Cottonwood creek—Similar to Cassia.

Bostetter—Bait fishing good but cars get no closer than three miles.

Trapper creek—Not so high now; dirty near forks and above; bait fishing good.

Rock creek—Fairly high and rolly but good fishing with bait.

Lake Cleveland—Inaccessible by car until about June 30; still frozen over and ice-fishing illegal.

Hill reported that license sales in the Cassia area exceeded those of a year ago.

How to tie a Tie

1. Start the knot by putting the wide end over and then under the narrow end in this manner.

2. Then bring the wide over the narrow and again and up through the opening at the collar.

3. Put wide end through the loop loosely and smooth out carefully to prevent wrinkling or twisting.

4. Make brothwise groove by pinching the sides together over the index finger. This forms a dimple under the knot.

5. Tighten knot and slide into place. The finished job should look . . . a perfect knot and drape.

You can always rely on an Arrow tie for making a neat knot every time. A special resilient lining sees to that. Moreover it insures a smoother drape—wards off wrinkles, helps the ties keep their smart good looks much longer. Come in and see our attractive new collection of Arrow ties. $1

I am sitting on a keg of nails as I telephone this ad in — which reminds me that we have plenty of nails at the lumber yard. Box nails, common nails, shingle nails, galvanized nails — and man you should see this rough lumber rolling in. We've just begun to receive our summer shipment from one of the mills that has been closed down all winter. This rough lumber is the Idaho Native Pine and you'll find it of good quality, so if you need a hay slip or a wagon rack, cowbarn, a chicken house or windbreak for your cattle, you'll find the makin's in our yard.

Two carloads of posts came in since we gave our last ad. These are split cedar from Kooskia, Idaho, and we got in a carload of round corner posts. These corner posts are cedar, eight feet long and some extra large ones, as well as medium size. We also unloaded a car of rough coast dimension fir, mostly 2x4s—but there are some 2x12s. We still have 3-inch coast fir bridge plank, although one customer took out three big truck loads this week. Have you seen the new siding that looks like brick and which serves as insulation as well as siding? Ask Charlie at the lumberyard about it the first time you're in. There's a good stock of Gold Bond insulating board on hand, consisting of all the sizes, and we're selling it at the same old price of $45 per thousand. You'll find composition roofing in medium weight, heavy weight and the 90-pound slate covered. The price ranges from $1.35 to $3.98 per square.

Our stock of large truck tires is going down — this is because we are not getting any new truck tires in sizes 8.25x20 and up. The army and navy are taking the output of all these large size tires and it's liable to be some time before they will be released for civilian use. So you'd better be good to those big tires. We do have four 8.25x20s, 12-ply, military tread. This is the new Pennsylvania non-skid truck tire. And we also have plenty of truck tires, including the size 6.00x16 up to 7.50x20. So if you need a truck tire of these sizes, why not make it a Pennsylvania? Pennsylvania tires give more mileage than most tires—and they don't cost you as much either, the way we buy in carload lots and sell for less.

Are you going to do any painting this year? If you are, now is the time to get your paint. We're handling the same old brand of General Paint and selling it at the same price we have for the past several years. We have a good stock of white outside paint, as well as inside enamel. We have the red paint for outside trim, but green paint has been frozen for the duration, and the factories are not permitted to make a green color. So if you intend to trim your house in green, you'll have to change your mind and make it red — or orange.

Have you seen those handy fifteen and thirty-gallon drums that we got in, containing Arkansas Motor Oil — we unloaded two cars of Arkansas Motor Oil in the last thirty days so we have all weights of motor oil for truck or tractor. This Arkansas Motor Oil is not just another motor oil — this is the kind of oil that penetrates into the pores of your bearings and will lubricate and give longer wear, as has been proven in hundreds of cases where motors have been torn down. In fact, a man came in the other day and said, "Well, I guess I am convinced now about your oil. I have been using it for a year and I had the motor taken down and it was found to be in first class condition with no carbon." This is the experience of hundreds of users of Arkansas Motor Oil.

A big shipment of linoleum came in this week — it consists of six by nine rugs, nine by twelve rugs, heavyweight print in yard goods and heavyweight and medium weight in yard goods. You can find most any pattern you desire. Our stock of wallpaper is also large — we got many of the latest patterns at prices that will surprise you.

I was away from Twin Falls during the first part of this month — Mrs. Barry and I went to San Diego to visit our son, Warren, who has had six months overseas in the south Pacific. He had some experiences, but I guess he's like the rest of the boys — they won't talk much when they come back. He and the other members of his Radar unit were transferred to Cherry Point, South Carolina, for additional training in Radar. From what I learned about it, this is the most marvelous invention of the present century. Our other son, David, completed his training at De Pauw university in Indiana and was transferred a few days ago to the college near Tucson. But we're back on the job again and we'll try to serve your needs as best we can from both sides of the street.

"Siamese Septuplet"

The discerning eye of a Twin Falls farm woman, Mrs. F. W. Messinger, found a plant oddity she believes to be as rare as the Dionnes. It was seven stalks of asparagus, smoothly matured as a single stalk and without even distinguishing ridges of separation. The freak asparagus was found on a ditchbank next to her garden fence. Occasionally two stalks are found together, says Mrs. Messinger—but seven stalks in perfect symmetry is really something. (Staff photo-engraving)

U.S. Ready With New Postwar Expanded Policies of Trade

By R. H. SCHAKFORD

WASHINGTON, May 20 (U.P.) — The United States today is ready to embark on a postwar international trade policy the keystone of which seems to be expansion of industrialization in hitherto "raw material" countries.

The objective of the present administration will be to purge the United States of economic nationalism as thoroughly as it will try to purge it of political isolationism.

Within the last week there has been overwhelming evidence that the administration is trying to persuade private interests that their own self-interest demands industrial expansion in other countries to prevent repetition of economic chaos and world depression which led to this war.

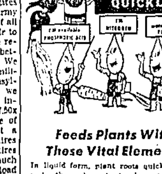

Government spokesmen who have made such proposals are Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Undersecretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, Jr., and War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson. All have emphasized the need of industrializing the traditionally agricultural and mining countries.

The major obstacle to such a program—already manifested in some quarters—will be found among what administration officials call economic isolationists, or people who believe that expansion of industry in other countries will mean a diminution of American exports.

Hull, in a formal statement opening national Foreign Trade week which begins tomorrow, outlined a four-point postwar international trade program, one point of which was that "capital must be made available for the sound development of latent resources and productive capacity in relatively undeveloped areas."

Nelson told the conference of Inter-American development commissions in New York this week that the United States must play a major role in helping to develop the industrialization of Latin American nations after the war.

Stettinius, reminded at his press conference of objections by some industrialists to expansion of "competing" industries in other countries, said history had shown that the industrialized nations were the great traders, and that anything the United States could do to increase industrialization of Latin America would rebound to American social and economic betterment.

Looking Things Over

With J. R. CRAWFORD

J. R. Crawford

Do you like to try out new ways of doing things sometimes? Or do you sometimes like to take new and untried trails? Some of us fellows from Buhl come up home every four weeks to get a look at something besides salt, and for some two or three months now, we have sort of been intrigued by a road marked "Montello," and have been determined to try it sometime when we had plenty of daylight ahead. We had thought to save something like 20 miles by not having to go through Wells, so Tuesday afternoon we tried out the uncharted road, and a pretty good road it proved to be.

The only thing wrong with it was that it was on the wrong side of the mountains to get directly to Montello, so we had to work back north about 20 miles to get around the hills and brakes. But I was hardly expecting to find that we could drive 50 miles and only see one lone man. No wonder Nevada has to count her sheep to have enough population to be entitled to statehood.

May Try Again

At last we found the little railroad shipping point of Montello and we decided that we had turned off the highway 93, too far south. We may try to take off at San Jacinto next time and think we will get around the head of the range of hills without turning back north. If we can, we should save quite a bit of mileage, and the road is not bad at all, unless it should happen to be raining, for the road from Montello to the junction with highway 40, about 15 miles from Wendover, is a smooth one, over almost endless flatlands.

From all of which I am reminded that our lives are filled with interesting side trails and bypaths, many of which play a large part in determining the course of our lives. We get away from the beaten and conventional paths because of something we have read in the papers or because of something some friend has said, and find our whole lives changed. And as in the case of the road to Montello, not always for the best. Again, at first everything seems to have been a mistake, though in the end all seems to work out for the best. It seems that a wise Ruler charts our lives in many cases, while we are merely actors on the stage of life, following the lines and cues that make up our part in the play of life. Maybe Bill Shakespeare was right about all the world being a stage and we the actors.

Side Trails Important

Many people call it "following a hunch," when they take off across country toward "Montello," while with women it is called "womanly intuition" but whatever we call it, these little side trails that we take on chance, are a large factor in our lives, making for success or failure. The successful persons have taken the right road and pursued it relentlessly to success, while the failures have taken the wrong trail and have blundered along, unwilling to turn back or not gifted with the ability to see that they are on the wrong road until life is too far spent to make a change seem worthwhile.

In this connection it would seem that some of the nations of the world have failed to follow the well marked and most easily travelled road, but have got off on a trail that can only lead to destruction or deterioration at best. For the Germans, Russia seemed the best trail to take to reach her goal of world domination, so she finds herself travelling a hopeless trail that gets more hopeless all the while. With Japan it was the "Chinese trail" that started her on her downfall though she must have been deeply day dreaming when she took the dimly marked "Pearl Harbor trail." She might have kept to the road of "industry and fair dealing" and have reached a successful point of destination, with honor to herself and integrity to the nations of the world. Now she is headed for a long, out of the way trip, that can only end in a blind alley or a blind canyon in world affairs.

And in the affairs of corporations uncharted "Montello trails" also play a large part. Many corporations have failed to read legitimate road signs of business management and have found themselves at the end of the trail, with canyon walls of failure and ruin straight ahead and insurmountable.

Stick to Main Road

So, while it is fun sometimes to get off the main road onto a side trail, it is more often safer to stay with the main, well marked trail. The trail down the onion or spud route has proved smooth sailing for some people when the harvest end was good travelling, but has been a long, long trek back to prosperity when the going got too tough on the far end. But that doesn't keep new adventurers from branching off each year.

But if you want a trail that will really lead you somewhere, take the good old American route, marked with war bonds at least once a month, and you will be surprised how lovely things will look at the end of the road.

P. S. We did see a blue house cat at one ranch house on the road to Montello.

WOOL

BOSTON, May 20 (UP) — Activity in practically all domestic wools ceased in the Boston wool market this week as purchasers, feeling that ample supplies will be available at no increase in prices, showed little inclination to build up inventories, the war food administration reported today in its weekly wool review.

The WFA announced that auctions of the government's stockpile wool will be held here on June 15 and 22 and July 13.

Valparaiso, chief seaport of Chile, was founded in 1536.

THE CYCLONE CELLAR

XXIV

For a moment Norma seemed puzzled. "A cyclone cellar is a nice thing to have, Symantha, even when the storm is over," she repeated.

"That is all."

Norma's eyes flew wide. Wide with surprise. "Link!" she gasped. "I know!"

"I imagined," Link told her, "it might have some special meaning for you."

"It's a code!" Norma was excited. "The cyclone cellar is a secret vault under old Tom Fung's house in Singapore. Only Kip and Tom Fung and I knew about it. We used to laugh about it, call it the cyclone cellar."

Link looked steadily at Norma. He began having an unpleasant creepy sensation. "A secret hiding place?" he said.

"Yes."

"One the Japs couldn't find?"

"Oh, no, they wouldn't find it ever, Link, do you see what this means? You do, don't you?"

"I'm afraid I do," Link muttered.

"It surely means," said Norma, "that Kip hid the movable assets, his own and the others of our bank, in that secret spot under old Tom Fung's house in Singapore."

"Where the Japs couldn't find it?"

"Yes."

The creepy sensation went up Link's back, through his arms. "Could the Japs find out such a treasure had been hidden?"

"Yes, easily, I suppose."

Without speaking, Link whirled and leaped across the room to the door. He opened the door. The next room was empty. He began searching all the rooms. He pushed aside the sliding paper and bamboo partitions that formed most of the walls. He looked into closets. He found no one. No one at all in the inn, other than Norma and Courtright and himself.

Link hurried out on the veranda. From there, he saw the wrinkled prune of an innkeeper talking to Captain Azaraski. They were near the two cars, about a hundred yards distant.

Tilda Courtright joined Link. Her face was pale. "Was anybody listening?" she asked.

"I'm not sure yet," Link said. "Let's look for hidden microphones."

They went back into the room where they had been talking. Norma had been searching, too, and she had found nothing. "Link," she said. "Link, did they—"

"Sure," Link said. "That is why they got us acquainted."

It was almost bizarre, their search for a concealed microphone. The inn was so genuinely ancient Japanese every part of it. There was not a modern touch anywhere. And a microphone was such a modern thing.

They even dug into the thing which Norma called a ro. It was a square hole in the floor for a charcoal fire. They probed the ornate bird nests under the eaves, the bird nests which were there, Courtright explained, for the Japanese children to pray to, as their ancestors had done.

"I do not believe there is any hidden microphone," Norma said.

"Maybe not," Link admitted.

"Oh Lord," Norma breathed. "I'm glad the Japs didn't overhear that."

Link could not feel relieved. He did not credit the Japs with being dumb enough to overlook a simple thing like a microphone. It would have been such an easy way for them to get the story. They had a way of getting the story, he was sure.

He made another quick, desperate inspection of the inn, but he found nothing suspicious. He observed that the innkeeper and Azaraski were still talking near the cars.

He watched for a chance, and got Tilda Courtright cornered alone. He had quite a time doing that. It was fairly obvious she did not want to talk to him.

"You knew Kip Greer, Courtright," Link said. "How much would he be likely to have hidden?"

The Greers had a big bank in Singapore, Link knew.

"How much?"

Courtright said, "No one thought Singapore would fall, at first. Wealth from all the Orient had been shipped there fore safekeeping, gold and jewels and anything like that which was easily transported. And all the Greer funds which the Japs hadn't taken were there."

"How much?"

"A lot, Link," Courtright said. "I don't really know, of course. Five or ten or fifteen. Maybe fifty. It would be safe to guess high."

"Five or ten or fifteen what?" Link asked.

"Millions," Courtright said, "of dollars."

An evening breeze had sprung up, stirring the lighter branches of the big pine trees and riffling the paper inn curtains. What surprised Link was that the breeze, even far out here in the country, seemed to have the fishy odor that pervades all of Japan. He should have been thinking about all the dollars. But the figure was a little big for easy thought.

"For that dough," Link said, "we rate something elaborate. It looks like we got it."

Courtright left him quickly, without saying anything more. He was sure that she was determined not to give him a chance to talk to her too much. He wondered what she was afraid he would ask her.

Solution Of Yesterday's Puzzle

15 POLYGAMISTS ADJUDGED GUILTY

SALT LAKE CITY, May 20 (U.P.)—Fifteen polygamists today were found guilty of illegally cohabiting with their 55 plural wives.

Defendants were apparently unperturbed by the verdict, read by State District Judge Ray Van Cott, Jr., which was the first conviction rendered in any of the cases now pending against 48 fundamentalists rounded up in Utah, Idaho and Arizona on March 7.

Van Cott set next Thursday, May 25, for passing of sentence after defense attorneys asked for time in which to prepare motions asking a new trial. If the new trial is denied, the defense plans to appeal the convictions to the state supreme court.

Persons Convicted

Found guilty of illegal cohabitation were:

Dr. Rulon C. Allred, six plural wives; Louis A. Kelsch, J. W. Musser and C. F. Zitting, five wives each; John Y. Barlow, Oswald Bratnich and Morris Q. Kunz, four wives each; Albert E. Barlow, Edmund F. Barlow, Ianthius Winford Barlow, David Brigham Darger, Joseph Lyman Dewitt and Heber K. Cleveland, three wives each, and Arnold Boss and Alma Adelbert Timpson, two wives each.

Van Cott assumed the sole responsibility for both verdict and the forthcoming sentences when the polygamists waived trial - by - jury earlier this week and submitted their cases to him on the basis of written stipulations.

The stipulations named the specific wives involved with each man but noted that "no testimony is offered concerning sexual intercourse of the defendant with said women."

Basis of Belief

The stipulations added that the association between the men and their wives was "based on the belief of both in the divinity of the doctrine and covenants of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (exclusive of the manifesto)."

The manifesto referred to was that in which the recognized Mormon church 41 years ago disavowed its doctrines of polygamy.

Today's verdict was only the first step as far as the government is concerned. All defendants still face at least one other state or federal charge in connection with their practice of polygamy. Four of them face two charges.

Other Indictments

White-haired Joseph Musser, leader of the sect, is also charged with state and federal conspiracy and has been indicted by the U. S. government for mailing allegedly obscene literature to three-wived Cleveland.

Zitting is charged with federal and state conspiracy and been indicted for allegedly violating the Lindbergh law in connection with carrying out his polygamous beliefs.

The state conspiracy complaint charges 22 men and 11 women with conspiring to perform, teach and practice plural marriage. Arguments on a defense motion to quash the charge will be held Friday.

The federal conspiracy indictment charges the 12 members of the fundamentalist "priesthood group" with mailing obscene literature. A government appeal of a federal judge's ruling to quash this indictment is now pending before the U. S. supreme court.

Verdicts and sentences for nine other fundamentalists charged with white slavery and kidnaping are expected to be announced soon by U. S. District Judge T. Blake Kennedy, Wyoming, who will judge each case on the basis of written stipulations without a jury.

Armload of Jaycee Trophies

Twin Falls Jaycee President Verle Moser pushes the Robert E. Hogg state award certificate at State President Charles E. Sieber to complete the armload of trophies the local organization won at the state convention in Boise last week. The local Jaycees won the 1943 awards for public health, trade promotion, sports and the Hogg award for the most outstanding single project of the year. Twin Falls retained the Americanism and leadership training cups it won the previous year since there were no contestants in 1943 projects. (Staff photo-engraving)

Jaycees Boost Aviation Meet And View Five State Trophies

Display of the five trophies won by the Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce at the state Jaycee war conference; decision to seek a Jaycee delegation for the state aeronautical meeting in Boise May 27, and presentation of full reports on the war conference highlighted the special membership dinner meeting of the Twin Falls organization at the Rogerson hotel Friday night.

Action to supplement the already large group which will go to the aeronautical session took the form of appointment of a contact committee to arrange a delegation which may range from 10 to 26 Jaycees. The committeemen are Bill Silmp, J. T. Harmon and Frank Krings. They will report Monday to Arnie Calund, general transportation chairman for the Twin Falls delegates.

Expect 18 Planes

The Jaycee group will go to Boise by car or chartered transportation. In addition, an estimated 18 air*planes* will carry six councilmen, Mayor Bert A. Sweet, Chamber of Commerce leaders, members of the civil air patrol and representatives of Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs.

Robert H. Warner, past Jaycee president, explained that the aeronautics gathering will play a vital role in shaping postwar air trends in the state. It will elect an aeronautics planning chairman and will make suggested aviation developments in Idaho.

The state trophies won at the Boise conference or retained from last year included those for sports, public health, trade promotion, Americanism, leadership training and the Robert E. Hogg award for the outstanding single project of the year. The Americanism and leadership trophies were retained because no other Jaycee unit competed in those projects for the past year. Twin Falls won both at the 1943 state convention here a year ago.

The Hogg award was for the local Jaycees' efforts on behalf of the Sun Valley navy hospital convalescents.

Submit Reports

Reports submitted on the convention included those by President Verle Moser, Bill Garnett, Bob Warberg, Jay E. Hill, Chic Crabtree, State President Charles E. Sieber, L. H. (Spec) Heslam, Ver Cox and Alton Young. Moser sketched the convention in general; Garnett outlined the talk by Ben Johnson, Preston; Warberg discussed the taxation warning voiced by Earl H. Murphy, secretary of the Idaho Chamber of Commerce; Hill told of Jack Simplot's talk foreseeing increased Idaho population, the need of jobs for those added residents and the necessity of comprehensive advertising of Idaho products.

Crabtree discussed Simplot's giant dehydrating plant at Caldwell, with the supplemental "hog motel" for feeding 2,000 hogs on waste material, and a contemplated "steer motel" to utilize further potato waste. He said dehydrated spud capacity of the plant is about 400,000 pounds of processed potatoes per day. Sieber summarized the address of H. Bruce Palmer, Flint, Mich., national Jaycee president; Haslam discussed — and picked flaws in — the talk by Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen; Cox gave a new member's reaction to the convention, and Young who drove Mr and Mrs. Palmer from Shoshone to Boise, praised the national president highly. He also told of social "highlights" of the convention.

Youth Center Work

Prior to the convention reports Crabtree declared that final work on the new youth center has slowed *down, and urged at least 15 volun*teers to complete carpentering and similar work at 9 a. m. today. Union carpenters, donating their time, will also be on hand this morning at the center. Crabtree said completion of the remaining work will clear the way for the union painters who have volunteered the painting, after which the center will be ready for furnishing and use.

Moser announced a special meeting of the board of directors for Tuesday night at the C. of C. offices. Jaycee committees for the year will be selected then.

Three motion pictures were shown by B. V. (Bud) Fisher, member of *the public relations staff of Stand*ard Oil of California. The films included a war year review, "Men of Timer" and an official army training film, "Kill or Be Killed."
